Vol. 39 No. 25 | 60¢ Per Copy | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, April 30, 1994 | Four Sections | $19.75 Per Year

Even though this past winter's severe cold weather destroyed the Pennsylvania peach crop this year, not all news about the state's fruit industry is, well, sour, as these Montmorency variety of sour cherry blossoms in Quaker Valley at Sunny Hill Orchards in Biglerville testify. Here, Scott Slaybaugh accompanies son Lyle, wife Deb, and daughter Whitney to inspect the blooms. This week's summerlike weather has accelerated the bloom on many fruit trees.

Peach Crop Near Total Loss Statewide

BIGLERVILLE (Adams Co.) — "Our peach crop this year in Adams County, Franklin, and probably most of York is pretty well shot," said Bill Kleiner, Penn State regional fruit specialist.

For growers in most parts of the state, because of the devastating winter, another disaster must now be added to the downed buildings, frozen water lines, and decimated livestock. Peach growers now face a total loss of their crop. This crop amounts to about 90 million pounds and about $20 million, according to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's 1992-1993 Statistical Summary.

For growers in the south central part of the state, including Adams, Bedford, Cumberland, Franklin, Fulton, and York, losses alone total about 57,630,000 pounds, or about $12.85 million. That's more than half of the total production for the state.

"There's practically no peach buds out there right now," said Kleiner. Growers "will not have a crop at all."

Fruit specialists have been monitoring the past winter at the Penn State Fruit Research Laboratory in Biglerville. The site, home

SRBC Reports Tests On Flow Of Nutrients In Groundwater

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

HALIFAX (Dauphin Co.) — The Susquehanna River Basin Commission this week published what appears to be a seminal study into the control of flow of nitrogen into groundwater, based on more than five years' worth of data from two small areas of study in Dauphin County.

The report was released Tuesday to Lancaster Farming during an onsite tour of one of the farms

Sowing Seeds Of Hope For A New Corn Crop

In what was thought to be "planting a little early to get a head start on 500 acres to do," this spring farming scene came into view along Plainfield Dr. just off Route 45 south of State College on the Willard Campbell family farm, Pennsylvania Furnace. The Campbells have a large dairy and farrow-to-finish hog operation.

Son John Campbell was enjoying the warm spring weather on the corn planter this week and said their ground had dried out from the winter snows and spring rains a little earlier than some fields. And since they had the manure hauled during the winter, they were able to work the ground and get into planting. Actually, the planter was kicking up a little dust when this photo was taken late Tuesday afternoon.

New York & Phila. Frozen Eggs

Tuesday, April 26, 1994

The market tone was barely steady and cautious. Buying interest was very limited as dealers closely watched related markets. Raw materials were usually readily available and further processors were reluctant to pass up bargains. Floor stocks were fully adequate with most plants running full schedules and building inventories.

Trading was reported at the listed prices. The trade sentiment ranged steady to firm. Whole breasts were irregularly distributed and ranged balanced to available. Trading was reported at current prices. Shippers asked higher prices for early morning offerings but backed off a little by mid-morning.

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

GRAIN AND SOYBEAN PRICES STEADY TO HIGHER TUESDAY. SOYBEAN PRICE GAINS TOOK A BREATHER TODAY, WITH WHEAT AND CORN IN THE LIMELIGHT. WHEAT 2 TO 4 CENTS HIGHER, WITH SOME OF THE NORTHERN AREAS 5-10 CENTS HIGHER. CORN 1 TO 3 CENTS HIGHER. SORGHUM 2-4 CENTS HIGHER. SOYBEANS FRACTIONALLY HIGHER AND LOWER.

GOOD WHEAT EXPORT ORDERS LAST WEEK AND EARLY THIS WEEK A FACTOR IN HIGHER PRICES. SNOW AND COLD TEMPERATURES MOVING OUT OF THE NORTHWEST COULD DAMAGE SOME WHEAT. FOR THE MOST PART NEW CROP WHEAT LOOKING VERY GOOD, FEW PLACES HARD RED WINTER WHEAT NEEDS MOISTURE AND SUFFERED SOME WIND DAMAGE.

SHOWERS ACROSS THE CORNBELT HIGHLY SCATTERED AND CORN PLANTERS CONTINUED TO ROLL, BUT PRICES HIGHER TODAY. CORN PLANTING WELL ABOVE NORMAL FOR THIS TIME OF THE YEAR. SNOW AND COLD TEMPERATURES DIPPING DOWN INTO THE NORTHER SECTION OF THE WESTERN CORNBELT, EXPECTED TO SLOW PLANTING PROGRESS. STILL PLENTY OF TIME TO PLANT AND REPLANT CORN, NOT EVEN MAY YET.

SOYBEANS RATHER QUIET TODAY, AFTER MONDAY'S SHARP ADVANCE. BULLS STILL LOOKING AT TIGHT STOCKS AND GOOD DEMAND FOR SOYOIL. OTHER OILSEED PRICES SHOWING HIGHER TRENDS. RECORD SETTING EARLY SEEDINGS OF CORN AND COTTON EXPECTED TO TAKE WHAT WOULD NORMALLY BE SOME SOYBEAN ACRES.

Quality Star

Star shaped core optimizes RFV.

With the new 4800 Series Round Balers, you'll be baling hay earlier.

You'll put more high-protein leaves in the bale for higher relative feed value (RFV). And, the star-shaped core allows the bale to breath, optimizing RFV at feeding time, too.

Best of all, the new 4800 Round Balers are easy to use.

Select the best size for your operation: 700, 900, or 2000 pounds. Then ask to see one at your White-New Idea dealer or call 1 800 767-3221.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

MAY 2-8, 1994

PERFECTION

Ninety years ago, on May 5, 1904, Denton True "Cy" Young made baseball history by pitching the major leagues' first "perfect game." For the uninitiated, that means no player on the opposing team ever made it to first base — no hits, no walks, no runs, nothing. Young led his Boston team to a 3-0 victory over Philadelphia that day and he went on to win more games (511) than any other pitcher. He's also the only pitcher to win 200 or more games in both leagues. Little wonder that former Commissioner of Baseball Ford Frick thought of Cy (for cyclone) Young in 1956 when he inaugurated an annual award to honor the best pitcher in baseball.

The greater the obstacle the more glory in overcoming it. — Jean Molière

TIP OF THE WEEK

One teaspoon of fresh herbs equals 1/2 teaspoon dried.

EARTHWISE

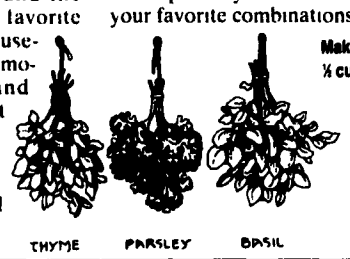
HERB BUTTER

1 tablespoon any fresh herb (OR 1½ teaspoon dried)
1 stick butter, softened

National Herb Week is a great time to think about herbs in the garden as an answer to pest control. Aphids shun chives and garlic. Tansy and mint discourage ants. Fleas hop away from fennel and tansy; try planting some around the doghouse or Fido's favorite patch of shade. Houseflies avoid basil, chamomile, mint, rue, and tansy. A hanging pot of any of these just outside the back door really cuts down on unwanted house (fly) guests.

Thoroughly combine the minced herbs and butter. Store in refrigerator in tightly sealed, labeled container. Use on fresh or frozen vegetables, or boiled new potatoes. Chervil, chives, parsley, and thyme are especially nice. Or try your favorite combinations.

Makes ¼ cup.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST: Sunny and warm; rain north, then warm and dry, cold and clear west and coast.

SOUTHEAST: Showers, cool, sunny and hot west, showers and warming, cold north.

MIDWEST: Rainy and warm, then clearing, turning cooler with showers north and east.

NORTHWEST: Rainy and mild, turning colder, heavy rain, snow mountains, then sunny and warm, showers north.

OPINION

Every Day Earth Day

The leader of New York State's leading farm and rural advocacy group says that for American farmers every day is Earth Day. He further notes that farmers are working harder and smarter than ever to protect the environment.

According to Charles Wille, president of the 23,000 member New York Farm Bureau, "The sheer fact that New York farmers own over eight million acres of land makes them common sense environmentalists. We depend on the land and water to make our living. It would be foolish to destroy the very resources that are responsible for our livelihood. In addition, our land is the same land that came from our ancestors; it is the land we hope to pass on to the next generation. It is in our best interest to be good stewards."

Wille said that farmers do a number of things that are 'environment friendly.' "Many farmers control insects and funguses through a program known as Integrated Pest Management. Better known as IPM, this program has helped farmers cut pesticide use by incorporting non-chemical pest control strategies, like insect pheromone traps and crop rotation, with the time-sensitive use of agricultural chemicals. In addition to IPM, farmers are working to reduce fuel usage, implement a variety of soil conservation techniques, and plant trees as windbreaks," said Wille.

Wille said the large tracts of land owned by farmers serve as a source of wetlands and a big source of habitat and food for wildlife, as well as the location of many of the trees, water and open space. He added, "Interestingly, I know one Western New York farmer who annually floods his corn fields with water after the harvest--thus providing food for waterfowl."

Wille went on to say that for non-farmers Earth Day has been celebrated for over 20 years. Farmers, on the other hand, have been working to be good caretakers of the land and water since man has been farming-- in other words, thousands of years.

Last week the average citizen celebrated Earth Day. Farmers did too, as they also are doing this week and next week and every following week.

To Work Safely Around Manure Pits

Deaths occur virtually every year from people and animals breathing hydrogen sulfide gas from liquid manure storages.

Hydrogen sulfide is a gas that stays below the surface of liquid manure pits until it is released by stirring or pumping.

University of Iowa research has found that more than half of all liquid manure storage facilities are capable of producing dangerous amounts of hydrogen sulfide.

A reminder of this potential danger to all family members and employees could prevent a tragedy.

Make sure all people are out of buildings and air movement is maximized before starting to agitate or empty storage facilities, especially for buildings with animals over pits. Agitate pits as slowly as possible so hydrogen sulfide dissipates before it reaches dangerous levels.

Never enter a liquid manure storage facility without a source of fresh air and a planned method of escape.

To Use Lawn Mowers Safely

With spring finally arriving, grass is growing rapidly.

Bruce Hellerick, extension horticultural agent, offers the following lawn mowing safety tips:

- Know the proper way to start and operate the mower. Read the manual before operating.
- Do not permit children or others unfamiliar with the mower to operate it.
- Never leave the mower running unattended.
- Know how to stop the engine quickly.
- Do not attempt to adjust or clean the mower when it is running.
- Do not refuel a gasoline engine while it is running.
- Never attempt to work on a mower until the spark plug is disconnected.
- Keep hands and feet away from all moving parts.

To Do Soil Tests

Farmers have two good reasons to soil test, according to Robert Anderson, extension agronomy agent.

First, soil tests save money. Second, they help save the environment. Soil tests tell the farmer what the nutrient level of phosphorous and potassium are in the field and how much fertilizer is needed to reach the desired level without overapplying fertilizer.

Traditionally, soil tests do not test for nitrogen in a preplanting situation because nitrogen is a very mobile nutrient. Soil teats for nitrogen are available for use later in the growing season to determine the need for sidedress nitrogen.

Fields should be tested every three to five years or when a different crop will be grown. Soil tests provide the farmer with pH, phosphorus, and potassium information, along with recommendations for the amount of lime and fertilizer needed to reach the desired yield goal.

Farmers who add manure to the soil before planting are provided information on valuing the manure against any fertilizer recommended.

By soil testing and following the recommendations, farmers may reduce costs and keep nutrients in balance for maximum yields while protecting the environment.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "If you want to truly understand something, try to change it."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

EATING WITH THE GENTILES
May 1, 1994

Background Scripture:
Galatians 1 through 2
Devotional Reading:
1 Timothy 1:12-17

It may be difficult for many of us to understand why this question of eating with Gentiles was so important in Paul's time — so important that he made a public condemnation of Simon Peter for refusing to sit at table with Gentiles who had been won to Christ.

Of course, we're on Paul's side. It seems idiotic to us that Peter should shrink from sharing a meal with Gentile Christians. Hadn't he himself had that life-changing experience at the house of Cornelius in Joppa? Did not Peter say, as a result of that experience, "You yourselves know how unlawful it is for a Jew to associate with or to visit any one of another nation; but God has shown me that I should not call any man common or unclean" (Acts 10:27-29).

Yet, in order to understand the importance of this conflict, we have to realize why this was so important to the Jewish Christians. Originally, there was a good reason for this practice. Throughout most of their history the Jews were surrounded by paganism. The Old Testament gives us continual evidence of the vulnerability of the Hebrews to the influences of paganism.

Something Special

The people of Israel were called to be God's special people and there were certain practices and life-style features that were designed to keep them untainted by the pagan world. Circumcision was to be a mark of their specailness. So was the way they conducted themselves at the table. As one commentator, Raymond T. Stamm, puts it: "Begun with the joyful thanks-giving and sanctified by conversation concerning God, a common meal became God's table, and the Jewish Christians were unwilling to risk spiritual contamination by eating with those who did not share it."

As to why Peter weakened on this matter, we must realize that he knew how sensitive the Jewish Christians were on this subject. Peter didn't want to alienate these people. If a whole segment of the church became upset, how would the gospel benefit from that? In changing his stance on this, was he not simply doing what his constituents wanted him to do? If he had put it to a vote, certainly they would have overwhelmingly voted against this kind of liberalism.

Subverting The Gospel

So, the prohibition of eating with non-Jews was meant to preserve the sanctity of the Jewish tradition. As such, it was well-intentioned. Yet, as so often with us, despite the good intentions, the prohibition had its pitfalls, too. And these pitfalls were subtle, for they tempted sincere Jews to pride and self-righteousness. Yes, the traditions kept them different, but they let this difference subvert the true nature of their specialness.

Now, the point for us in May, 1994 has little to do with whom we sit at table. But that doens't mean that what happened between Paul and Peter at Antioch is irrelevant to us. Even though the circumstances may be different, all of us have our "eating with Gentiles" problems today, too. Can we share Holy Communion with Christians whose beliefs may not be the same as ours? Should we share our churches with people whose life-styles make us uncomfortable? In order to avoid being stained by the pagan world, don't we also have to keep ourselves pure and unsullied by others?

It is in the midst of questions such as these that Paul says to us, as he did to the Galatians, "I am astonished that you are so quickly deserting him who called you in the grace of Christ and turning to a different gospel..." From a gospel of gospel of grace to a gospel of works. And that is not a gospel.

Scholarships

The AJCC scholarship adminstration program makes scholarships available to youth who own at least one registered Jersey and who are accepted or enrolled in college.

Selection is based on financial need and scholastic achievement, as well as Jersey and related activities.

Applications are available by calling the AJCC, or writing to the same address as for awards, except that a different zip code should be used. Instead of 43068-3636, use 43068-2362.

Three V.L. Peterson Scholarships for $750 are available to youth who have completed at least one year of college.

"Vic" Peterson has been called the "Dean" of dairy breed representatives for his 25 years of service as an AJCC area representative.

One $750 Paul Jackson Memorial Scholarship is awarded annually to a youth who has completed at least one year of college. Mr. Jackson was a longtime Jersey breeder, showman, and herdsman who was devoted to encouraging junior interest in Jerseys.

Jersey juniors who are graduating from high school and have been accepted by a college or university are eligible to compete for two William A. Russell scholarships. The Russell Scholarship was established in 1977 to honor Bill Russell, a lifelong Jersey enthusiast who was an area representative of the American Jersey Cattle Club and National All-Jersey Inc.

Three $750 Jack C. Nisbet Memorial Scholarships are awarded annually to participants in the National Jersey Youth Achievement Contest. Nisbet joined the AJCC staff in 1941 as an extension director. He served as executive secretary for the club from 1943 to 1947.

There is a $1,000 Stanley K. Bansen scholarship to be awarded to students working on an advanced degree (masters or doctorate) in dairy or animal science, dairy manufacturing, or agricultural business.

The Bansen scholarship was established in 1992 to honor Bansen's lifelong interest and dedication to the Jersey breed and the dairy industry.

In addition to these scholarships, the AJCC administers the ABS/Morris B. Ewing Essay Contest sponsored by American Breeders Service. The contest winner will be awarded a $500 scholarship.

Contest entries should focus on the question: "What is likely to be the biggest challenge Jersey breeders will face in the near future, and how can they confront this challenge?

To be eligible for the contest, applicants must be between 16- and 22-years-old, as of Jan. 1, each contest year.

Essays should not exceed 1,000 words and will be judged on accuracy of information, creativity, and grammatical correctness.

Judges To Select Dairy Of Distinction Farms

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.)—The annual meeting of the Dairy of Distinction program was held this week on the Penn State campus. Paul Nichols, secretary, reported that the program of farm beautification has been increasing in usefulness since it was started in Pennsylvania in 1987.

"We are improving the image of farms to consumers," Nichols said. "And we are having more requests for information about farms from the media."

Dan Baker, president, said the program has been successful because the 10 local district chairpersons and their committees have made the selection and judging of farms happen. "The local districts make the program a success," Baker said.

The Dairy of Distinction program is designed to reward clean, well-kept farmsteads to help with consumer acceptance of dairy products in the store. Since its inception in Pennsylvania, 517 farms have been designated in the program.

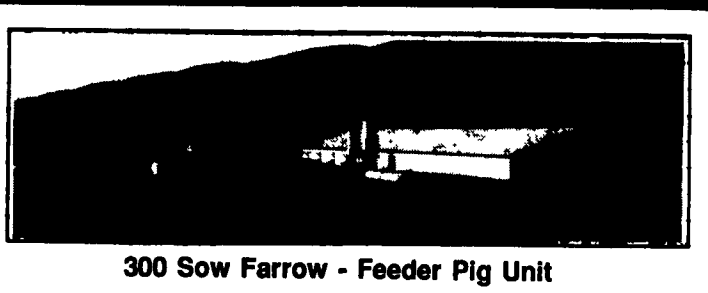
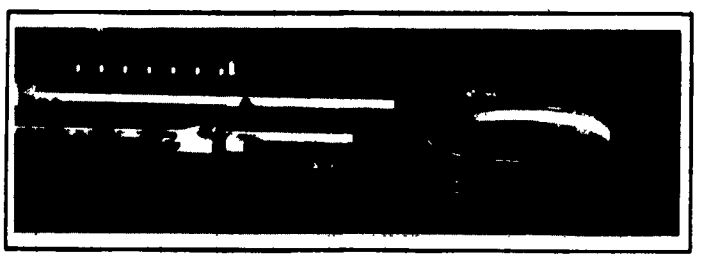
PIG SAVER "DUTCH CRATE"
Developed through testing in our research farms the goal was to develop a crate that nearly eliminates crushing, due to lay ons, unmatched durability and be easy to work around. All this has been achieved by a unique gravity fliprail that forces sows to lie down slowly and using stainless steel for rear doors and legs, proven horizontal and solid steel rod construction. All this at a reasonable cost. Crate also can be installed on an angle.

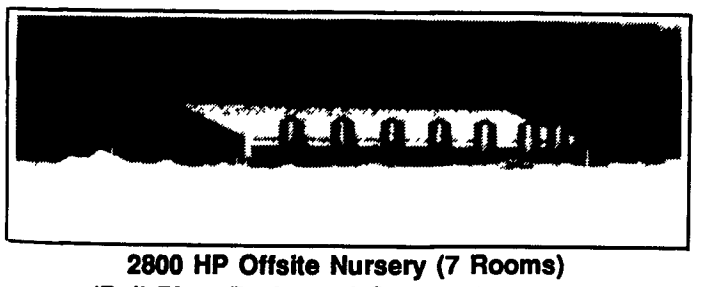


300 Sow Farrow - Feeder Pig Unit

CONFINEMENT STALLS
Developed in our R&D farm. Our goals were convenience, safety and durability. The low back and flat top rails are easy to reach over with no sharp edges. Stainless steel rear legs and front feet along with solid steel horizontal rods through punched uprights provide the strongest, most durable stall ever produced by Tri-County (21"-24" O.C. x86")

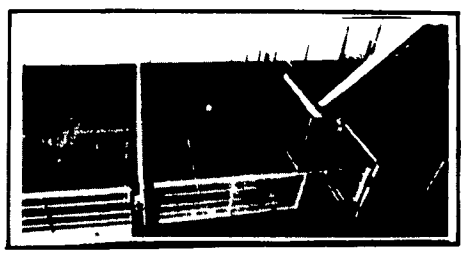


1200 Sow Farrow-Feeder Pig Unit



2800 HP Offsite Nursery (7 Rooms)
(Pull Plug, Preferated Ceiling Ventilated)

NURSERY PENNING
Nursery penning has been improved by the use of an optional solid stainless steel panel on the front gates which keeps walkways clean. Stainless steel feet on penning eliminate corrosion where penning attaches to the floor. Stainless steel drinker pipes & mounting brackets also increase durability.



2000 Head Finisher (2 Rooms)
(Deep Pit, Tunnel Ventilated)

FINISHING PENNING
Standard stainless steel feet and fasteners offer improved durability over other similar types of penning. Loop and flapper latch arrangement eliminates the use of drop pins. Stainless steel fence line feeders provide excellent durability and a minimum of waste.

BRH & BHFF RO-CROP CULTIVATORS
Minimum Tillage

The heart of the BRH Ro-Crop is Brillion's No-Wobble Parallel Linkage. Heavy duty is an understatement, the linkage for each gang weighs over 50 pounds. Strength where it's needed, a Brillion tradition.
Heavy duty straight edge shanks allow high-speed tillage without throwing dirt or residue.

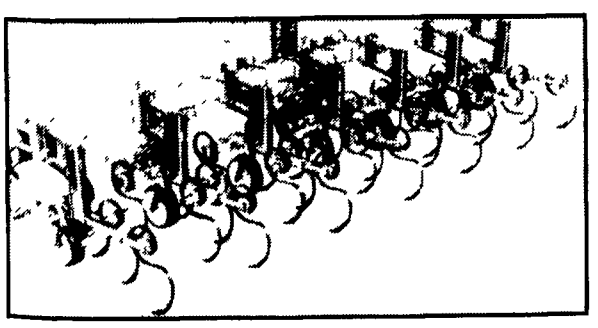
BRS RO-CROP CULTIVATORS
4-6-8 Rows



The Brillion "S" tine cultivator (model BRS) with four-way tooth movement is designed for high speed cultivation, especially in conjunction with chemical weed control. The "S" tines also mulch the soil and level the ground for easier harvesting.

THERE'S A GUARANTEED MARKET FOR BUCKWHEAT!

Looking for an alternate to typical grains as a cash crop?

Buckwheat could be your answer!

Unlike other small grain crops that require increasingly costly inputs and are subject to unstable prices depending on crop size, gov't. programs and fluctuating export markets — buckwheat can be grown under contract to us with both the price and the market guaranteed before you plant. Consequently more and more growers in this area are including substantial buckwheat acreage in their planting schedule.

There are definite advantages:

- ☑ Guaranteed Market
- ☑ Guaranteed Price
- ☑ Growing Buckwheat offers savings in labor, fuel and other inputs since it requires little or no fertilizer, no herbicides or insecticides, it improves the soil and can be planted up to July 10.

*We guarantee to buy the crop this Fall from our Contract Growers But you need a Contract

Don't delay. Contact us right away before acreage requirements for this year are filled.

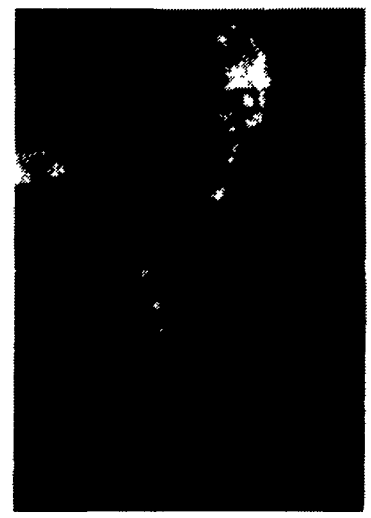
Walnut Acres Founder Receives Award

PENNS CREEK (Snyder Co.) — Paul Keene, founder of Walnut Acres Organic Farms, has received special recognition from the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA).

PASA presented Keene with its 1994 Pennsylvania Sustainable Agriculture Award "for a lifetime of visionary dedication to the conservation of our natural resources and for leading the way to a more sustainable agriculture."

Keene founded Walnut Acres Organic Farms in 1946. The farm, located near the central Pennsylvania village of Penns Creek remains a family operation and now includes a grain mill, bakery, cannery, and farm store. Walnut Acres products are sold via mail order and in natural foods stores throughout the United States.

With Keene as its agriculture visionary, Walnut Acres has always followed strict organic farming and food preparation practices. No synthetic chemicals are used at any step, from growing to final packaging. In addition, a primary emphasis is placed on building up the soil — putting more back in than is taken out.



Paul Keene

PASA, in making its second annual award, called Keene "Pennsylvania's own pioneer of organic farming." It cited him for his "outstanding leadership, perseverance in the face of adversity, innovation and inspiration in the development of sustainable agriculture systems in Pennsylvania and the world."

Poultry Science Club Holds Banquet

Wampler Says Calif. 'Pacesetters' Each Consume 24 Pounds Of Turkey Per Year

JUDITH PATTON
Union Co. Correspondent

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Charles Wampler, Jr., board chairman of WLR Foods, Inc. of Harrisonburg, Va. was the featured speaker at the 4th annual Penn State Poultry Science Club Banquet held here last week.

Wampler's father was the first person to raise turkeys in confinement, which was the start of the modern turkey industry. One of the first county agents in the United States, Charles Wampler, Sr. decided in 1921 to take turkey eggs to a hatchery rather than allowing hens to run wild and hatch their eggs in nests in wooded areas, which were hard to locate. He also formulated the first turkey feed from onion tops and other ingredients because there were no commercial turkey feeds available at the time.

From that beginning with 10 turkey hens and two toms, the Wamplers developed the Wampler Feed and Seed Company, which evolved to Wampler Foods (1969-1984), Wampler-Longacre (1984-1988), and the present day WLR Foods in Virginia and Pennsylvania. Its New Oxford, Pa., plant employs 100 turkey producers and 1,000 employees.

With the aid of favorable nutritional publicity for being lower in fat than other meats, Wampler said per capita poultry consumption in the U.S. is now 85 pounds a year, which is higher than pork and almost up to beef. Californian "pacesetters" are eating 24 pounds of turkey a year per person.

Wampler cited the biggest challenges facing agriculture now and in the future as feeding more people with less land, protecting the environment, and most of all, protecting the agriculture industry from the environmentalists and animal rightists.

Comparing agriculture to Rodney ("I don't get no respect") Dangerfield, Wampler pointed out that agriculturalists need to be "good stewards" of the land and livestock to counteract the effects of consumers taking food supplies for granted and farmers being pushed out by population growth.

The future for college graduates in agriculture is bright, Wampler said, even though the types of jobs available are changing. Not as many people are needed for production, but more are needed in technical areas such as computer programming or research, he pointed out.

Wampler is a strong supporter of his alma mater, James Madison University, where he established two professorships, was rector and vice rector of the board of visitors, helped set up an arboretum, and has a dorm named after him. He helped establish the Virginia State Fair, for which he was on the board of directors for 25 years. He served on the Virginia Board of Agriculture for eight years and was president and general manager of the Rockingham County Fair Association.

Club Awards

The Penn State Poultry Science Club won the Poultry Club of the Year Award at the International Poultry Exposition in Atlanta for the second year in a row. The club also had the best display at the Penn State Ag Products Spectacular at the Nittany Mall in State College last fall and placed first at the Ag Hill Olympics.

Awards to Poultry Science Club members presented at the banquet were high grade point average to club member Henry Zerby and poultry science major Ed Hoffman; Most Active Club Member - Troy Eckert, 1993-94 club president; and Most Active New Club Member (first year) - Becky Riegel.

Club officers for 1994-1995 are Doug Metzler, president; Lydia Kepler, vice president; Becky Riegel, secretary-treasurer; and Brian Sensenich, ag student council representative.

Poultry Judging Team members, who competed at the University of Tennessee, were Troy Eckert, Lydia Kepler, Eric Smith, and Brian Sensenich.

Dirk Wise, club adviser, highlighted other club activities including fall and spring turkey sales, a visit to Perdue, Inc., selling chicken sandwiches at Ag Progress Days, having a display about the new Penn State poultry farm facilities at the Northeast Poultry Trade Show, and the summer internship placement program.

Do You Have Laminitis In Your Herd?

GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Do you have laminitis in your animals? If you answer "yes" to the following list of possibilities, you can expect the presence of this condition in your herd.

1. Are your cows in a loose-housing or stanchion barn system where they stand a lot on wet, cold concrete and in manure that isn't removed daily?

2. Are your cows lying down on wet, cold and manure-covered concrete alleys instead of in dry free stalls or dry, bedded areas, pens or stalls?

3. Are your cows standing in a muddy barnyard and lying down there instead of on dry, grassy pasture?

4. When going to and from the pasture, do your cows walk again and again over the same worn, muddy lanes that you have tried to stabilize with gravel, crushed stones, or worse — crushed cinder?

5. Do your cows eat silage or hay from a trough that has remained for a long time in the same muddy place in the middle of a field?

6. Do your cows go a long time between hoof-trimmings?

7. Does more than one out of 10 cows show symptoms of lameness?

8. Are you a good dairy farmer as evidenced by the daily milk production level of your cows and your feeding levels of concentrates?

Older dairy farmers who used to work with horses know the term laminitis. It's typically applied to horses as the condition also known as "founder."

However, new research has shown that the condition applies as much — maybe more — to dairy cattle. Its incidence isn't fully appreciated, because laminitis isn't a contagious disease like mastitis or tuberculosis.

Laminitis occurs as a consequence of management, especially nutritional management, often in the better herds, and to a large extent, it's preventable.

It has been established that laminitis in dairy cows is the result of many factors. Nutrition is the dominant one.

Cows show various signs of difficult and painful walking behavior. Blood spots, hemorrhage, open sores and discoloration of the hoof, sole, claw and between the claws are visible. Also, the sole is softer, wears more and injures more easily against hard pointed objects, stones and pebbles.

Lameness is usually not just simple foot injury, although the condition is aggravated by a sloppy, wet environment. Evidence indicates that the symptoms of laminitis lameness are first and foremost the result of inappropriate changes in the rumen of dairy cows, mostly in high-producing cows.

Thus, laminitis is among the preventable management diseases, better called disorders, such as ketosis, milk fever, enterotoxemia, parakeratosis and low milkfat syndrome.

These disorders share the common denominator of inappropriate feeding of the rumen of cows. Except for milk fever, all of the above ailments have two things in common — excessive concentrate energy feeding in relation to the necessary balance with sufficient fiber content, and not enough length of fiber in the daily diet.

The energy excess and shortage of fiber produces a shift in rumen pH, resulting in a condition called acidosis. Acidosis is caused by an out-of-balance proliferation of lactobacillus, streptococcus and other bacterial species, accompanied by the simultaneous reduction in the numbers of beneficial bacteria.

This causes the release of endotoxins and histamine, which affect the delicate blood vessels of the claw and laminar tissues of the hoof. The result is heightened pressure, blood clots, hemorrhage, injury to the tissues, hoof deterioration, painful walking and lameness (laminitis).

For dairy goats and sheep the conditions and causes are very similar to those of dairy cows. In fact, the cure tried for the so-called "overeating" disease familiar to breeders of high-producing dairy goats often is vaccination against enterotoxemia when what is called for is correction of acidosis from faulty feeding regimes.

Faulty feeding of heifers has been linked to laminitis. When heifers are pushed to grow fast and gain more than 1.7 pounds daily in order to reach 24-month first calving, they are likely to have claw sole hemorrhages stemming from acidosis.

Other causes of acidosis include: 1) high amounts of starch and sugar in the ration without enough salivary buffering from fiber rumination; 2) "slug" feeding of concentrates instead of several meals per day; 3) finely chopped silage or haylage; 4) absence of baled hay; 5) and, in the case of exceeding the 50 percent limit of concentrate-to-roughage ratio when feeding very high-producing dairy animals, the absence of buffer supplements to the ration like sodium bicarbonate, magnesium oxide and calcium carbonate.

In addition to acidosis in the rumen from faulty dairy rations, it is also known that excessive amounts of protein in the ration produce histamine and high levels of rumen ammonia and blood urea, all of which affect and assault the microcirculation of the claw tissues.

On the other hand, in some studies, rations supplemented with zinc have been beneficial. This augmentation has resulted in stronger hoof texture, fewer heel cracks and improvement to interdigital dermatitis — overall, improved hoof health.

The primary drawbacks, however, are excessive amounts of energy from the now much debated class of "non-structural" or "rapidly" fermentable or soluble carbohydrates, formerly known simply as starch and sugars.

These aren't listed in feed content tables, and you can expect to learn a lot about this in the coming months as a way toward more profitable dairying. You will also be hearing more about the prevention or correction of the costly laminitis cases in your herd, because in terms of economic losses, laminitis ranks right behind mastitis and reproduction.

Herd Management Software Available On Trial Basis

ELK GROVE VILLAGE, Ill. — Westfalia is making their Dairy Plan Herd Management software available for 75-day free trials.

Dairy Plan is IBM compatible with DOS 5.0 or higher.

Dairy farmers will have the ability to use Dairy Plan to its full capabilities for 75 days. At the end of the 75 days, the program ceases to operate.

Dairymen interested in investing in the program can contact Westfalia and purchase the operating key for $299. It's very user friendly and data can be entered for multiple cows without switching screens.

Using Dairy Plan, a dairyman can make detailed decisions concerning his herd or an individual cow for the improvement of the dairy's bottom line.

The free Dairy Plan is now compatible with Microsoft Windows and with local area network systems, allowing large dairies to have multiple computers accessing the same Dairy Plan database.

Former Junior National Showman Sees Dream Come True

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BREEZEWOOD (Bedford Co.) — Sam Wylie always knew he wanted to make his living with cattle.

He knew it as far back as standing in the ring at the first National Junior Angus Showman in Kentucky as a teenager. He knew it as the ribbons and trophies piled up and the news clippings and special photos made their way into frames.

Thing is, he wasn't sure how!

"I tried the show circuit for a long time," Wylie says. "I showed cattle, traveled all over the country showing for others, grooming and trimming hooves. But it wasn't what I wanted to do forever."

Certain that the American farmer had it all wrong, Wylie began to study farming methods in countries such as those Down Under.

"The problem I have with farming as the Americans do it today is that they plant, cultivate and harvest their crops; haul the food into the animals; then haul the manure back out."

Wylie began taking a holistic management approach for his black angus herd. This ecologically sound production model is based on the land feeding the cattle and the stock's waste nutrients recycling and feeding the land.

Needing more land, he found it at a reasonable price in the quiet valley of Clearville where he bought 153 acres and rents a second farm of similar size. "I also utilize some other grassland in the area to make round bales for winter feed," he says.

"I had this picture in my mind," Wylie smiles. "Black cows in green grass. That's a pretty sight. I needed a stock farm with an above average house and land that was at least 80% usable. I knew I could beef up any barn."

Now as springtime arrives in this Pennsylvania Valley, Octoraro Angus is providing the answer to those early dreams of Wylie's. Fifty coal black calves are on the ground and another 20 or more expected to drop any day.

Wylie named his new place Octoraro Angus, after a creek that divides southern Chester and Lancaster County, where he farmed prior to moving to Bedford County in 1988.

"It's taken 25 years to get to the point where I am now," admits Octoraro's owner. "It's been done with no fads, no frills, only years of sound line-breeding and selection practices based on 'pure,' breeder traits longevity, reproductive efficiency, balanced EPD's and the traditional Angus qualities of which the breed was founded."

Wylie says his cattle have passed the test for being efficient.

Even a winter as tough as the one just experienced was not hard on cattle bred tough enough to take it. "That's been my idea," Wylie assures. "To have cattle that provide a balance of true lasting genetic value along with the ability to thrive on a low-input intensive grazing program."

The cattle are confined to their lush paddocks with an efficient spring loaded fencing system and there is very little trouble with cattle breaking loose. A solar energizer is used for maximum control of cattle on the rental farm.

As Sam surveys the green hills surrounding his one time overworked farm, he sees green grass now thriving. Grass he has carefully cultivated to include such nourishing plants as puma, chicory, clover, and other cool season grasses. "I try to get plants started that have deep roots," he says. "That way they bring the nutrients buried deep in the earth to the surface. And, they also survive summer droughts."

With his time tested gene pool in line and cattle adaptable enough to survive well on grazing, Sam did a headcount and realized he was becoming overpopulated. "I like them all," he admits, smiling broadly, "but shucks, I can't keep all of them forever."

For this reason, Wylie has also taken a modern approach to marketing with a day of entertainment, fellowship and selling planned for Saturday, May 14. There will be speakers on intensive grazing management and certified Angus beef.

An advance catalogue will show such offerings as the high indexing heifer from the '93 calf drop: an extension out of a stacker out of a viking which is strictly foundation genetics.

Wylie also plans to offer 20 cow calf pairs from the heart of the herd along with fall calving cows and bulls.

Planning ahead, Wylie has set starting prices on each lot to be made available on sale day. No cattle will be sold for less than the starting price. Cattle will be available for inspection anytime prior to 12:30 p.m. on sale day. There will not be a traditional sales ring.

Providing a balance for the sale will be a table of refreshments including "angus," hot dogs. "Not black," laughs Wylie, "just made from angus beef."

Two speakers will also be available to provide information for prospective buyers including Tom Calvert talking on "Introduction To Intensive Grazing Management," and Bill Wylie, "Evolution of Production Genetics to Consumer Oriented Genetics".

"By doing this," admits Sam, "I hope to educate those 'would be' farmers of the future on the ways of line breeding of grazing. By doing this, I'm building my own customers."

Future plans also include a new watering system instituted by the Bay project which should be as maintenance free as the rest of the farm.

"When that happens, I will even be able to get a few weekends free," Sam Wylie says.

Farmers Are Environmentalists

Good farmers are good stewards of the land. It is simply good business!

No farmer in his right mind wants to pay a big price for farm land and spend a lot of money on lime, fertilizer, seed and pesticides, only to watch his investments wash away because of poor conservation practices. He wants to build up the soil so he can obtain good crop yields while also protecting the environment.

Sometimes we fail to appreciate all the things farmers are doing to help protect the environment we all share. Perhaps they have become such a routine part of good farm management practices that we tend to take them for granted.

Soil Conservation

For decades, farmers have been planting crops in contour strips, alternating row crops with sod crops. Steeper slopes have been terraced and runoff water has been diverted into sod waterways to prevent the formation of deep gullies.

Cover crops, planted after harvest, help prevent soil losses and reduce the leaching of soil nitrogen. They are also a source of early spring forage, a green manure crop to incorporate into the soil, or a crop that can be harvested for grain and straw.

Some steeper slopes are planted to permanent hay or pasture thus reducing the need for tillage on these highly erodible soils. There has also been increased usage of no-till and minimum-till techniques. Besides reducing soil losses, these practices also reduce the use of petroleum fuels.

Fewer Chemicals

More and more farmers are looking for non-chemical ways to control pests. Thanks to biotechnology and genetic advancements, they now have a greater array of insect and disease tolerant crops to choose from. Insecticides are being replaced with helpful parasites, bacteria, fungi, traps, etc. Rotation of crops helps to reduce problems associated with insects, diseases and weeds.

Wide rows have been replaced with narrow rows, which produces a thick shade canopy more quickly and provides better weed control. The shade canopy also reduces surface evaporation of soil moisture.

More and more fields are being tested and scouted by crop consultants on a regular basis, and the reckless use of fertilizers and chemicals is being replaced by best management practices.

Soils and manures are being analyzed for nutrient content and applied in accordance with crops' needs. Nitrogen tests are run on corn fields when corn is about knee high to more accurately determine nitrogen levels in the soil so proper amounts can be sidedressed for more efficient use by the crop.

Similarly, fields are monitored for insect, disease and weed pressures, and chemicals are recommended only when these pests reach threshold levels, or when other means fail.

Nutrient Management

Soil testing and manure analyses, as discussed above, help reduce excess applications of nutrients. To avoid excess applications of manure, many farmers are exporting manure to other farms that need it, or are processing it and selling it as compost or as a soil amendment.

Nutrient management plans are being developed for many farms to serve as a guide for applying manure and fertilizers in a safe, responsible and efficient manner.

Alfalfa, planted after corn, helps to reduce phosphorus and potash levels that have built up in the soil during the corn phase of the rotation. Where more nitrogen is needed, legumes such as beans, alfalfa and clover are planted to fix atmospheric nitrogen, thus reducing the reliance upon chemical fertilizer.

Conversely, if soil nitrogen levels are high, annual crops such as grasses, corn and sorghum are planted to utilize the nitrogen and to help prevent it from leaching into the water table.

Long-term manure storages are being built on many farms for several reasons. It eliminates the need for daily hauling, thus enabling farmers to apply manure when soils are "fit" and closer to the time crops can utilize it efficiently. This, coupled with quick incorporation, reduces nutrient loss and soil compaction.

Farmers are concerned about the quality of water their family, their herds and their flocks drink. Thus, it is desirable for them to protect their wells and streams. The above practices help them accomplish this. In doing so, it also helps to keep our rivers and bays cleaner.

Our forefathers built barns close to streams and close to sources of water that fed their shallow, hand dug wells and their springhouses. Since then, the number of animal units on these farms has increased many fold! This high animal density on sensitive sites presents some farmers with serious nutrient management challenges.

Many of these farmers are fencing livestock out of streams. They are replacing their dirt barnyards and exercise lots with concrete barnyards and sodded sacrifice lots. Some have gone to total confinement of the herd, or have built new facilities in less sensitive areas.

Recycling Wastes

Farmers are great recyclers! Many of the feeds they use are recycled wastes that, if not fed, would be filling up our land fills.

Examples include soybean oil meal, cotton seed, canola, beet pulp, brewers grains, distillers grains, bakery wastes, cannery wastes, candies, etc.

More recently, newspapers and old phone books have been ending up under cows as bedding. Leaves are being applied to fields or used as a source of carbon for composting manure. For decades, they have been using crop residues as bedding, and recycling it back to the field as manure.

Energy Conservation

Milk is warm when excreted from the cow, but it must be cooled down quickly to a temperature of less than 40 degrees for safe keeping. A lot of heat is driven off during this cooling process. Farmers are using heat exchangers to help capture this heat so they can use it to heat water, their milk houses and their milking parlors.

Many farmers are harvesting their grain at higher moisture levels and ensiling it as high moisture grain. In addition to reducing field losses, this technique eliminates the need for artificial drying and the use of electricity and petroleum-based fuels.

To remain healthy and to attain efficient levels of production, animals need fresh, clean air, and they need to be comfortable. To accomplish this, farmers have relied heavily on fans.

In recent years, many farmers are relying more heavily upon natural ventilation, thus reducing their reliance upon electricity.

Farmers who rely heavily upon horses and mules and diesel powered generators have less need for petroleum-based fuels and electricity.

On some farms, methane gas from manure is being captured and utilized for generating heat and electricity. Attempts are being made to adapt methane generation to smaller farms. If accomplished, it may reduce methane emissions into the atmosphere. Improved animal nutrition and balanced rations also helps to reduce methane production by ruminant animals.

Many farmers are active environmentalists. As you can see from the examples just cited, they have accomplished much. They need to be commended for their accomplishments. However, the job is not yet done, and probably never will be done as we continue in our attempts to make our communities a better place to live. It is a responsibility we all share.

Kauffman Directs Farm Credit

LANCASTER (Juniata Co) — Jonas B. Kauffman, III has been hired as executive director of Pennsylvania Farm Credit Financial Management Services (FMS). The announcement was made by Philip Kimmel, on behalf of the Keystone, Northeastern and York Farm Credit Associations. As executive director, Kauffman will be responsible for the daily operation of the FMS programs throughout the state. Farm Credit's Financial Management Service offers a variety of record-keeping and tax preparation plans designed especially for farmers through knowledgeable and specially trained FMS Specialists.

The hiring of an executive director is the first step in an effort to consolidate these services throughout Pennsylvania. Customers will continue to receive the same service as they have in the past form their current FMS specialist. It is anticipated that this restructuring will be an enhancement to overall operations by allowing one individual to focus management efforts entirely on the needs of FMS. This should enable the department to position itself to take advantage of future opportunities for service expansion and operational efficiencies.

Kauffman comes to Pennsylvania from New York where he worked for Farm Credit of Western New York. Prior to joining Farm Credit, he worked for the Extension Service of Cornell University. As an extension associate with the New York State Dairy Profitability & Productivity Project ("PRO-DAIRY"), Kauffman provided leadership in developing and delivering a financial management curriculum to farm managers across New York state. Kauffman also has direct experience in managing a farm business. He is a native of Lewistown, and received his undergraduate degree from Penn State and a masters degree from Cornell.

Farm Credit in Pennsylvania serves approximately 15,000 farmers and rural residents with loans totaling nearly $950 million.

Landis Bros., Evergreen Have Sales Agreemenmt

LANCASTER/LEBANON - Landis Bros. Inc., the John Deere dealership in Lancaster is expanding this week with the acquisition of the John Deere division of Evergreen Tractor Co., Inc., Lebanon.

Herb Noll, partner/general manager, said the expanded territory will double the business potential with the new service area of Dauphin, Lebanon, Berks, and Schuykill Counties added to the present York, Lancaster, and Chester Counties. They plan to continue their new Lebanon branch at what has been the Evergreen site.

Dennis Grumbine, owner of Evergreen, has moved the used equipment business and the Bobcat dealership under the Evergreen name to Myerstown.

Noll said the move fits into the industry trend of fewer dealers that are better equipped to handle larger areas of service. "Today's business goes to the farm," Noll said.

To service the additional farmers, Landis Bros. Inc., has fully equipped trucks for on-the-farm service in all areas of their business territory. The Lebanon branch will concentrate on service and parts. Used equipemnt and new equipment sales will be handled from Lancaster. New equipment will be on display in the Lebanon branch.

The new Lebanon branch of Landis Bros. Inc., will have six employees. Co-managers are Phil Wimer, parts, and Parke Sollenberger, service. Ken Nolt and Ray Peters are the sales representatives.

The Lebanon branch will be open for business Monday, May 2 under Landis Bros. Inc., management. The Evergreen business will continue in Myerstown at the same time.

W.Va. Holstein Association Seeks Consignments

MOUNDSVILLE, W.Va. — The West Virginia Holstein Association is hunting cattle! The cow hunt is taking place as they prepare for their annual state Holstein sale scheduled for August 27 in Moundsville, W.Va. at the Marshall County Fairgrounds.

This is the third year for the state sale to be located in the northern panhandle of the state. Last year's sale average was just over $1,500, according to the auctioneer Denny Remsburg.

This year the sale committee has established a major change in the type of animals they want for consignment to the sale. Registered Holsteins of any age can be considered for the sale and this is the first year that they will take animals that are ID Grades.

Each of the animals being considered for the sale should at least meet the herd average where they are presently located.

The sale is under the management of Denny Remsburg with Dick Chichester from Select Sires being on hand to read the pedigrees of each of the animals being paraded in the show ring.

The ring men are auctioneers themselves, so those people consigning animals know that there are professionals trying to get the best bid possible. Hauling is also being provided by the Northern Panhandle Holstein group that is hosting the sale.

The sale committee will be visiting farms and selecting animals for the sale in mid-May.

If anyone has an animal that they would like to have considered, please call Ivan McCombs at 304-232-4543 or Merle Chaplain at 304-845-3167.

Washington State Site Of National Holstein Convention

BRATTLEBORE, Vt. — Washington state Holstein breeders are to host the national convention this year and the Pacific Northwest breeders are welcoming members July 3-6.

After nearly 30 years, the National Holstein Convention returns to Washington — the land of Eskimo art, salmon and crab, evergreen forest and salt water harbors. Washington State first hosted the national convention in 1935, later in 1965.

Seattle, the convention city, has the 74-acre legacy of the 1962 World's Fair. The 605-foot Space Needle is the city's landmark with its 360-degree view of Puget Sound, the Cascade Range and the Olympic mountains.

The 109th Holstein convention has two early preconvention tours starting Sat., July 2.

• Whatcom County Farm Tour. A one-day motorcoach trip travels from Seattle to Lynden through the heart of Whatcom County visiting registered Holstein dairies. The drive follows the U.S. Canadian border with stop at the world's largest raspberry producer at the peak of the harvest season. Tour leaves at 7:30 a.m. Box lunch. Returns 7 p.m. Cost $30 per person.

• Mount Rainier National Park. The 14,411 foot Mt. Rainier, an inactive volcano, will be visited. Close views of alpine meadows, Box Canyon and Chinook Pass are included. The eleven-hour motorcoach ride has a box lunch. $43. Call Grayline direct by May 31, toll-free 1-800-544-0739.

In Seattle on Sunday, July 3, delegates are asked to check-in at the registry desk at The Westin Hotel (Grand Foyer, 4th floor). The President's reception starts at 6 p.m. in the Westin's Grand Ballroom with tributes to the Association President John Selz and directors of the national board.

The Fourth of July begins with an early golf tournament, three Seattle tours, salmon BBQ, national cattle sale and harbor fireworks.

Tuesday, July 5, elected delegates attend to the business of the Holstein Association. The highlights of the day include the Juniors' dairy bowl competition, state officers' breakfast, early bird talks on North American genetics, annual meeting general sessions, and Ladies Day activities.

Wednesday, July 6, the day's calendar focuses on a second-day annual meeting and the farewell banquet. Highlights include Annual Meeting Keynoter Jack C. Parnell, President Bush's deputy ag secretary, dairy bowl team winners, national distinguished juniors, an election of officers and directors, the announcement of the national outstanding breeder, and recognition of 40-year members.

The national convention dinner dance with a salute to Holstein leaders concludes the convention. The 1995 national convention is to be held in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania in June.

CHORE-TIME® Ultraflo® feeders

More Than 260 Ultraflo® Systems Have Been Sold In The Northeast Since 1985 - That's Over 20 Million Birds!

Over 80% of the nation's top egg producers have already switched to Chore-Time cages with ULTRAFLO® Feeders!*

Here are the facts why ULTRAFLO® outperforms chain feeders

FEED SAVINGS. Customers report 1/2 to 2 lbs. per 100 birds/day—over $10,000 per year saved on a 100,000-bird house. Year after year!

TROUGH DESIGN. High tensile steel for strength. No feed buildup or waste like chain trough.

NO HI-GRADING of feed, due to our design. Chain lets birds pick over feed while feeder runs.

REMIXES FEED. Our auger slowly revolves, keeping old and new feed blended. Chain doesn't, so feed can get stale.

REPAIR & MAINTENANCE. Ours needs the least of all feeders. Easy splicing with auger connector, and no troublesome corners or chain guides to replace. Saves money and time year after year.

SIMPLE OPERATION. "Push-Pull" Power Units with low HP motor are located along the feeder line as needed. Have hardened steel gears for trouble-free life. Microprocessor control lets you program feeding time to the second.

EASY AUGER CONNECTOR. Allows fast and simple installation, also quick and easy repair of auger if ever necessary. Auger and trough are both warranted 5 full years. Chain feeders are not.

Egg producers have been putting up with obsolete chain feeders far too long. Now there's a better way: Chore-Time's proven ULTRAFLO Cage Feeding System. Since introduction, more than 80% of the top 54 egg producers* have gone to ULTRAFLO. A lot of smaller ones have too.

They've all looked at the advantages and chosen ULTRAFLO. That's because it makes them more profitable. Total egg production and egg size—these are the best benefits of our complete feeding system.

Why not check out the facts for yourself? Contact us now—or ask any producer who owns ULTRAFLO.

Peach Crop Near Total Loss Statewide

At one of the Penn State test plots at Hollabaugh Bros. Orchard, the only blooms seen the past week were at the snow line. The several feet of snow acted as a cover and protected some buds, according to Bill Kleiner, fruit specialist.

Growers can also examine information about the new Canadian winter-hardy peach varieties now under testing at Penn State. But research is still out on how well the trees can tolerate severe cold. Here, Kleiner inspects the Harken variety.

to various fruit tree research studies, recorded a temperature of minus 18 degrees in mid-January this year. Some growers, according to Kleiner, reported temperatures down to minus 30 in spots.

"Depending on where you were in the county, it just wiped the whole crop out," he said.

At one of the Penn State test plots at Hollabaugh Bros. Orchard, the only blooms seen the past week were at the snow line. The several feet of snow acted as a cover and protected some buds.

"We've seen a few on some sites, some trees, mostly on the buds that were protected by the snow," said Kleiner.

At another site, cold and ice stress has caused limbs to break, resulting in canker formation.

For many growers, it will involve some tough decision-making regarding harvest of the crop, where bloom is sporadic at best.

Also, seasonal workers who help harvest the peach crop will have to reschedule, although the apple bloom is moving along quickly and, if the weather and other factors are right, there is hope for a good harvest.

Some damage was reported by growers on apple trees (particularly the Red Delicious variety) and sweet cherries might have been affected. But those affects were no where near as severe as the losses growers face to peach orchards.

Some growers in Adams County have particularly large-size peach operations, according to Scott M. Slaybaugh, who operates Sunny Hill Orchards in Biglerville. Slaybaugh, president of the Adams County Fruit Growers Association, said that, out of a total of 190 acres, about 8.9 percent of his orchards are in stone fruit production, including peaches, nectarines, apricots, and also plums and sweet cherries.

Slaybaugh said the losses "really got to hurt.

"It would be the same for a lot of us if this would happen to apples, but they're a lot tougher," he said. The cold, he said, has "hurt a few of the apples, but not bad."

Slaybaugh said that some of his Gold Delicious applies have also been affected, but doesn't know whether cold weather is to blame or if it is just an "off year." But cold temperatures can affect the peaches — or any fruit — severely.

"I would think it can eventually get cold enough for anything," said Slaybaugh.

The cherry crop could have been severely affected by the cold temperatures, something that worries Slaybaugh and other growers. "I think it's hurt the cherries a little," he said. "I think it's hurt the cherries more than we realize."

Kleiner and Slaybaugh both agreed that is too early to be able to tell exactly how the damages will affect the apple industry.

Peaches "just aren't as (cold) hardy has apples," said Kleiner. "Peaches just can't take that temperature."

A combination of climate and genetic factors make some types of fruit more vulnerable to deeply cold temperatures. Apple trees can withstand temperatures to minus 30, according to the fruit specialist.

For now, growers may have to take the loss.

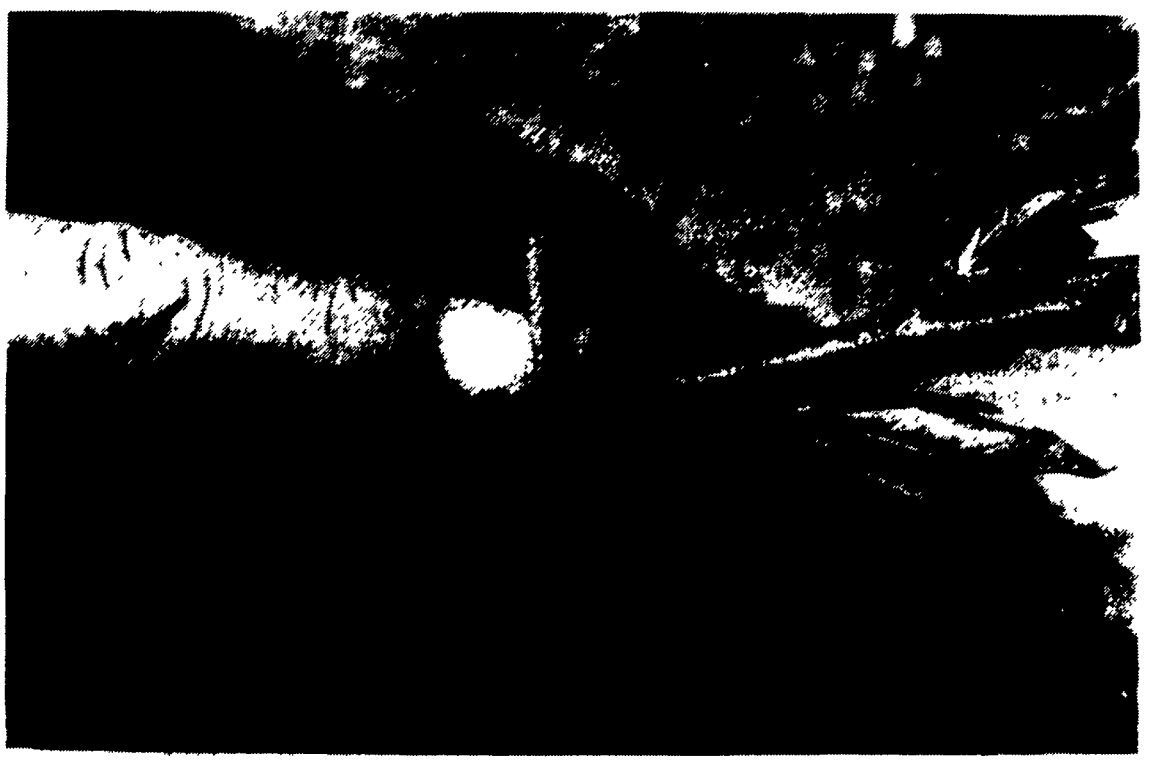
At another site, cold and ice stress has caused limbs to break, resulting in cytospora canker formation.

Scott Slaybaugh, president of the Adams County Fruit Growers Association, said that, out of a total of 190 acres, about 8.9 percent of his orchards are in stone fruit production, including peaches, nectarines, apricots, and also plums and sweet cherries. Slaybaugh plants Rome Beauty on M-7 root stock.



Peaches "just aren't as (cold) hardy has apples," said Kleiner. "Peaches just can't take that temperature." A peach bud was destroyed by the severe winter.

Groundwater Protection Teleconference At Farm And Home Center

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension in Lancaster County and the Lancaster League of Women Voters are hosting a national video conference on groundwater protection to alert citizens and local, state, and national decision makers about how to better protect our groundwater resources from pollution.

The conference will be held from 2 p.m.-4 p.m. on Wednesday, May 4, and will be downlinked at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center in Lancaster.

The two-hour video session will feature presentations, panel discussions, a call-in segment, and film footage revealing success stories of groundwater protection. Highlights will include an examination of the role of groundwater in the renewal of the Clean Water Act and Safe Drinking Water Act.

The video conference will not only provide a common pool of knowledge about groundwater issues, it will also provide a focused course of action.

Topics addressed by the speakers include reducing nonpoint pollution from agriculture, developing effective wellhead programs, mobilizing citizens and communities, and building national policy.

Participants in the conference will have the opportunity to call in questions and receive answers on the air.

There is no registration fee to attend this video conference, although reservations need to be made in advance by calling the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office at (717) 394-6851.

NDC Honors Two Scientists

ROSEMONT, Ill. — The NATIONAL DAIRY COUNCIL® (NDC) honors two prominent scientists for their contributions to research and education this week during the 34th annual meeting of The American Society for Clinical Nutrition (ASCN) in Anaheim, Calif.

Selected by the ASCN Awards Committee are Michael F. Holick, Ph.D., M.D., who will receive the E. V. McCollum Award for his groundbreaking work in the area of Vitamin D research and Maurice E. Shils, M.D., Sc.D. recipient of the 1994 National Dairy Council Award for Excellence in Medical/Dental Nutrition Education.

"Every year, it is our honor to join ASCN in recognizing exceptional contributions in the field of nutrition," explained Greg Miller, Ph.D., NDC's vice president of Nutrition Research who will present the awards.

"These awards demonstrate our commitment to stimulating the scientific exploration of nutrition and its impact on everyday life."

Dr. Holick of The Boston University School of Medicine has touched the lives of millions of people worldwide. His research findings in the field of vitamin D have been translated into practical applications to improve health. As a graduate student he identified and isolated the biologically active forms of the vitamin.

Laboratory data from his research demonstrates the critical role of solar radiation and artificial lighting on the production of vitamin D. These data were then used to develop fluorescent lighting which would enhance vitamin D production in the skin.

Therapeutically, Dr. Holick's studies have led to the identification of vitamin D as an effective therapy for relieving the symptoms of psoriasis and of psoriatic arthritis.

Dr. Shils is being honored for his long and distinguished academic career as well as his role in championing nutrition education. Among his accomplishments, Dr. Shils developed the innovative concept of regional medical/dental centers to promote clinical nutrition education.

Peach Crop

Penn State Extension is looking into ways to help growers deal with the loss. The region has been declared a disaster area because of the severe winter weather.

Financial losses can be covered by fruit crop insurance (which is extremely expensive, according to Slaybaugh) or low-interest loans from the Farmers Home Administration.

For now, growers should continue to follow a pruning program, because the cold weather has only affected this year's harvest. The trees should produce fruit, if the weather cooperates, next season.

Growers can also examine information about the new Canadian winter-hardy varieties now under testing at Penn State. But research is still out on how well the trees can tolerate severe cold.

Compared to other years, the past winter has created a condition more severe than the dozen or so frosts that growers experienced in 1990.

For those who want to buy peaches, states such as New Jersey, Georgia, South Carolina, South Virginia, and North Carolina will have a crop. But prices to the food retailers could rise.

Many peach growers may have to take a severe financial loss.

"You're talking a significant loss here," said Kleiner. "Nobody realizes it. This area, it's going to be felt, because it's such a big industry here.

"There's not a thing you can do — other than grow extremely hardy plants, if you can find them.

"I've talked to ASCS to see if there's anything coming through," said Kleiner. "There's nothing.

"This is equivalent to a hurricane coming through, or a tornado coming through and wiping out all your property," he said.

Cow Hoof Trimming Pointers Given At Demonstration

MIRIAM WERT
Juniata Co. Correspondent

PORT ROYAL (Juniata Co.) — A cow hoof trimming talk and demonstration was presented on the farm of Glen Henry earlier this month. Dr. Dale Moore of the Penn State Veterinary Science Department gave information as to why regular care of the hooves is necessary for the good health of the animals.

The overview of her talk concerned the anatomy of the cow's foot, weight bearing, foot trimming guidelines and diseases of the hoof. She also presented facts concerning lameness in dairy cattle which causes severe pain and discomfort, resulting in lower milk yields, reproductive inefficiency, etc. Studies have shown that over 90 percent of lamenesses are from foot problems, with most of those problems in the rear feet.

Dr. Moore pointed out further that the potential causes of lameness are management, environment, nutritional imbalances, disease and genetic factors. She passed around to the group actual lower legs of dead cows to illustrate the various parts of the foot and its problems, and to compare the back with the front foot.

She stressed that the hoof is alive and therefore it has an anatomy as any living thing has. The hoof wall, sole and heel are made of keratin (like the cow's horn) and water. This means that the structure does not provide a very thick covering for the tissues which contain nerves and blood vessels. The keratin in the hoof is replaced every year.

The hoof grows at a rate of about two inches per year, depending on the environment, nutrition and genetics of the cow. The rate of hoof growth is greater in the rear feet than the front, and the hoof grows fastest during Spring and Summer. It was noted that the outer layer of the hoof is important for retaining moisture, and so it must not be sanded or rasped off during trimming as this could cause it to dry out and crack.

The sole has the same composition as the hoof wall but is softer and only one-half inch thick. It must not be perforated or trimmed too much as this would expose the sensitive parts, leading to bleeding, pain and lameness. She added that the softest area is the white line between the hoof wall and the sole. This area accumulates dirt and stones and needs to be cleaned before trimming.

Developing further the idea of weight distribution, Dr. Moore pointed out that a hoof responds to heavier weight-bearing by depositing greater amounts of keratin. In young animals, the weight is rather evenly placed around the hooves, but in mature cows more weight is put on the outside walls of the rear feet. So this is where they have more overgrowth and need more trimming.

Dr. Moore said further that the inner walls of the front feet bear more weight as the cow matures. The bulbs of the heels are not normally weight-bearing surfaces but, with exaggerated overgrowth of the hoof horn, the body weight shifts and the bulbs of the heel come into contact with the ground. Since the bulbs are more like skin and are loaded with nerves and blood vessels, they are more sensitive. Some cows with excessively FORCE CONTROLS. In Developing FORCE soil insecticide, Zeneca Ag Products simulated and improved on the powerful chemistry found in chrysanthemum flowers. The result is the first pyrethroid insecticide designed for soil application.

Because of this unique chemistry, FORCE ranks low in mammalian toxicity, which means very low hazard to humans. In addition, the low water solubility and soil mobility of FORCE greatly reduces any risk of leaching or groundwater contamination.

CUTWORM APPLICATION RATES. Apply FORCE at 8 to 10 oz. per 1,000 linear row feet. The lbs./acre equivalent rates are:

6.5 lbs. per acre on 40" rows	7.7 lbs. per acre on 34" rows
6.9 lbs. per acre on 38" rows	8.2 lbs. per acre on 32" rows
7.3 lbs. per acre on 36" rows	8.7 lbs. per acre on 30" rows

FORCE may be applied in a T-band in front of the press wheels, in a band behind the press wheels, or in-furrow.

No other soil insecticide controls as much as FORCE® when it comes to performance against a wide variety of pests. Not only does FORCE control rootworms, it outperforms Lorsban 85% to 76% on cutworms according to 1992 field trials. Counter can't even touch cutworms. FORCE also works significantly better than Counter or Lorsban against wireworms and white grubs.

NDB, UDIA Announce Joint Venture

CHICAGO — The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board (National Dairy Board) and United Dairy Industry Association (UDIA) recently announced the establishment of Dairy Management Incorporated, a joint venture designed to improve joint planning, increase program and cost effectiveness, improve industry communications, and enhance accountability by combining the current staff and program administration of both national organizations.

Under the new agreement, Dairy Management Incorporated will be responsible for development and execution of all producer-checkoff-funded national marketing for milk, cheese, butter and frozen desserts and other industry functions including product research and development, nutrition education, public relations, market research and development of export markets.

In many respects, the joint venture represents a formal extension of recent promotion and research planning efforts between the two organizations. Over the past year, the National Dairy Board and UDIA jointly developed the 1993 adult fluid milk marketing plan, selected a new advertising agency for fluid milk, and significantly increased coordination of other promotional activities for the current year.

"The joint venture we've announced today is an important and logical development for our industry," said Robert W. Giacomini, chairman of the National Dairy Board. "Over the past year, the two organizations have worked very closely and very effectively together. Today's announcement represents a formal extension of our current working relationship."

Under the new arrangement, the structure of the respective boards of directors for both the National Dairy Board and UDIA will remain unchanged. Both Boards maintain responsibility for approval of annual business plans and budgets and accountability for results. For purposes of overseeing Dairy Management Incorporated, a 20-person governing board will be formed by each parent Board naming 10 of its members to the DMI Board. Details of the joint venture involving immediate staff assignments, reporting relationships and other operational issues will be brought to the parent boards in the weeks to follow.

"Given the increased demands on the dairy industry's resources, the increasing costs of competing in the marketplace, and the significant opportunities associated with promoting the benefits of dairy products, the consolidation of these two staffs is both sensible and timely," said Herman Brubaker, chairman of the United Dairy Industry Association.

"For too long, there has been confusion over which organization was responsible for specific program areas," adds Brubaker.

"This is an opportunity to streamline communications for the benefit of the dairy industry and other organizations involved with the promotion of dairy products and proper nutrition. Dairy farmers have asked us to do this and we're delivering."

The United Dairy Industry Association, located in Rosemont, Ill., is a member-driven federation which contributes a total promotion program for U.S.-produced milk and other dairy products. UDIA is the umbrella organization for American Dairy Association, which conducts advertising and marketing services, and National Dairy Council, which conducts nutrition education and research programs.

The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board, based in Arlington, Va., is comprised of 36 dairy farmers from across the U.S. The organization develops and implements a coordinated effort of promotion, research and communications to increase demand for U.S.-produced milk and dairy foods.

Two Good Reasons For Farmers To Test Soil

NEWARK, Del. — Farmers have two good reasons to soil test — to save money and to protect the environment.

"Soil tests tell you what nutrients and how much of them are needed for a given crop," said Karen Gartley, University of Delaware soil testing program coordinator. "Why spend money on what's not needed?"

Soil tests can also help diagnose in-season production problems and determine when and where manures can best be used, Gartley said.

"For example, a soil test can tell you whether a field needs not only the nitrogen but also the potassium and phosphorus and other nutrients in manure, thus increasing its fertilizer value. If the soil is already high in potassium and phosphorus, the crop won't benefit from more," she said.

In such cases, a farmer may find it more cost-effective to buy commercial nitrogen fertilizer for that field and spread the manure on another one that needs potassium and phosphorus as well.

"Farm soils should be tested every two to three years," Gartley said. "It also pays to test when problems are observed or there are major changes in cropping rotations, such as from grain to vegetables."

The University of Delaware Soil Test Laboratory charges $5 for a basic fertility test. Special tests for boron, copper, sulfur, and soluble salts are available for an additional charge. A presidedress soil nitrate test (PSNT) calibrated for Delaware soils and growing conditions is also available for $6 to corn producers looking for in-season nitrogen recommendations.

Soil samples can be collected any time of year, provided the ground isn't frozen. PSNT tests should be taken in early June when corn plants are 12 inches tall. Soil test kits and additional information are available at county extension offices in Newark (302) 831-2506; Dover (302) 697-4000; and Georgetown (302) 856-7303.

Atlantic National Angus Show May 27-30

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Angus breeders from throughout the nation are expected to attend the 1994 Atlantic National Roll of Victory (ROV) Angus Show May 27-30 at the Maryland State Fairgrounds in Timonium.

The Atlantic National Junior Show, May 27-28, has been designated as the 1994 Northeastern Regional Junior Preview Show. Judge for the junior event is David Hawkins of East Lansing, Mich.

The open show, May 29-30, is one of 14 ROV point shows the American Angus Association sponsors each year. Vance Uden of Franklin, Neb., will judge the open show.

Junior Angus exhibitors are invited to the first annual meeting of the Atlantic National Junior Angus Council to be held at 9:30 a.m. on Friday, May 27, at the show grounds. At noon on Friday the showmanship contest begins followed that evening by a junior fun night. The junior show begins at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, May 28.

Open show activities start on Sunday, May 29, with the heifers followed by the cow-calf and bull show on Monday, May 30.

Cow Hoof Trimming

long toes develop lameness because of bruising of these bulbs, and correction is done by shortening the length of the hoof and redistributing the cow's weight.

Heel erosions begin at the bulb of the heel and start out as pits on the surface. After a time, parallel grooves develop and fill with black material and bacteria. The horn can separate at the grooves to form a "flap", and a new sole develops underneath, with material becoming packed in between the layers. Usually this condition is seen in cattle confined in wet/dirty lots. This is why the cleaning of the hoof is so vital before trimming.

Objectives of foot-trimming were also given, as well as information on diseases of the foot and treatments. A live demonstration of foot trimming was then given by professional trimmer Paul Neer, after which literature from Penn State on the covered subjects was distributed by Dr. Moore.

In discussing the subject of cleaning and trimming of hooves with some of the farmers, this writer found that many of them had done their own trimming in the past but more and more of them have turned to using the services of a professional. They expressed that they do not have time to do it on a regular basis and were not sure they were doing it as thoroughly and correctly as it should be. Also, they do not have the equipment to place the cow in a position where they could work well on her. Through demonstrations such as this, they have learned more of the importance of correct cleaning and trimming because healthy feet make a much healthier, more productive cow.

As all other businessmen, farmers have learned that they must put to use the latest information and instructions in order to produce the best quality product. When they turn the technical work over to those experienced in that line, it allows them to use their valuable time in the production which is their livelihood. The more that this writer associates with them, the greater is her admiration of farmers and their families for the quality of work that is evident, as well as her understanding of their investment of time and money in their business.

SRBC Reports On Groundwater Nutrients

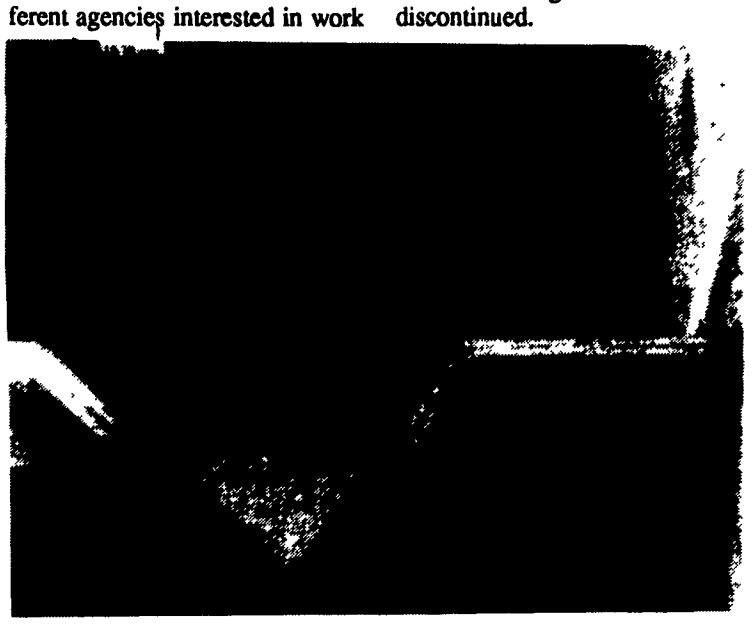
The study was jointly financed by the SRBC and the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

The farm toured Tuesday was the 219-tillable-acre dairy and poultry farm of Paul Clugston, located near Halifax. He milks 103 Holsteins in a commercial herd and raises approximately 92 replacement heifers and calves. He also has 65,000 broilers under contract to Pennfield Corp.

Clugston has been cooperating with nutrient studies for years, and has been involved with several different agencies interested in work done there. From 1986 to 1990, researchers from Penn State University looked into nutrient cycles at the site. Their work involved measuring amounts of nutrients put on the soil and amounts removed.

The SRBC studies were different in that they focused on measuring water flows, the nutrient levels in water flows, and also the effectiveness of artificial wetlands in removing nitrates from the water.

Because of problems with the design of the second study area at a farm near Enterline, much of the monitoring there was discontinued.



The pipe at the top of the photograph is a drainage pipe that was installed as part of an USDA SCS erosion control plan. The pipe was sectioned and this measurement box installed by researchers in order to measure the rate of flow and also to take water samples. The small pipe on the right leads to a stilling well. The "V"-notched weir helps with measuring flow.

Larry Taylor stands by a surface water collection flume. Water flow is automatically recorded and samples of surface water are automatically taken by the equipment housed in boxes.

From the left, standing on an artificial wetland designed to breakdown groundwater nitrates into environmentally safe nitrogen gas are Paul Craig, extension agent, John Graham, civil engineer, Paul Clugston, owner-operator of the farm, Larry Taylor, hydrogeologist, and Donald Bollinger, chairman of the state Nutrient Management Advisory Board. The wetland is made of a series of haybale baffles to serve as a carbon source overlain with a sandstone gravel medium to allow water flow and provide a surface for bacterial growth.

What researchers have been working with is a 10.9-acre self-contained watershed valley on Clugston's farm that has a natural small spring.

The center of the valley had originally been a wet, soggy, tree-line area until Clugston installed field drains according to his conservation plan created by the USDA's Soil Conservation District. The area had been considered highly erodible land.

Those field drains, according to researchers, were dug deep enough that researchers said they think the drains have been collecting all the shallow ground water from the field.

To treat the collected water, two 20-foot, by 50-foot, by 3-foot-deep rectangular artificial wetlands were constructed.

The first wetland was made five years ago, but it was put in during a dry period. Last year, a second biological filter was installed, after researchers experienced two years of more normal rainfall and discovered that the first wetland couldn't handle the flow.

The research data shows that high nitrate levels in the shallow groundwater, attributable to the use of manure fertilizer on the watershed, seemed to be contained in that layer of groundwater; and that the wetlands plants and microbes consumed the energy from the nitrates, converting it to N2.

The N2 is the gas which constitutes 78 percent of the earth's atmosphere and is considered a reservior of nitrogen that is not immediately available for use by plants and animals as a nutrient.

The report lists four conclusions reached by its authors:

• "Nitrification is an important process influencing the quality of recharge to the ground water system at both farm sites.

• "The nitrate concentration in ground water decreases with increasing depth below the water table. Thus, the depth to the shallowest water-bearing zone is an important factor in determining the degree that the quality of groundwater produced by a well will be influenced by agricultural activities.

• "In the rolling topography, as characterized by areas underlain by the Catskill Formation, field drains can be designed to capture a significant portion of the recharge to the ground water system; perhaps limiting the spread of nutrient contaminated ground water. The nutrient rich water can be treated using small, artificial wetlands.

• "Application timing and rates, and types of fertilizer may be important factors in the quality of recharge water, however, soil conditions, depth of water table, depth of water bearing zones, and natural chemical character of the ground water (either oxic or anoxic) are important considerations with respect to the degree the ground water will be contaminated."

What is means is that researchers are saying that it is possible to protect the movement of nutrients into deep groundwater by using a drainage system to collect rainwater filtering down through the earth and then treating or using that water.

While the researchers used "artificial wetlands" to use up nitrates in the collected groundwater, they said it is theoretically possible to use those nutrients in that water to operate a hydroponics facility.

They said they did have a problem getting enough phosphorus as a nutrient from the groundwater, despite the fact that Clugston uses almost all cow and poultry manure to fertilize.

In the report's comments on the effectiveness of the constructed artificial wetlands, which were designed using the same principles that would be used to construct a biological filter for waste water treatment, the researchers said that the lack of adequate phosphorus in the groundwater limited the ability of the wetlands to use up nitrates.

"Although there had been a small reduction in the nitrate in the discharge from the wetland, we were dissatisfied with the results. Review of the data suggested that the concentration of phosphorus in the spring and field drain might be inadeauate to promote root growth.

"In June of 1993, a phosphorus fertilizer was added to the wetland. Within three weeks, the nitrate concentration in the wetland discharge dropped from 24 milligrams per liter (mg/l) as N to 9.24 mg/l as N.

"Also the dissolved oxygen fell from 2 mg/l to essentially zero."

What that means is that the lack of phosphorus in the groundwater limited the ability of bacteria, microbes and plants to grow and thus use the nitrates as energy.

That has implications that more research is needed on the construction and maintenance of artificial wetlands, among other things.

However, the technique of recovery of groundwater for treatment is similar to the systems used at landfills to collect leachate.

This year, the SRBC plans to expand its study by developing a similar research plot on a Lancaster County farm, according to Larry Taylor, a hydrogeologist with the SRBC.

Taylor is one of three authors of the study sponsored by the SRBC, "Water Quality and Hydrogeology of Two Small Agricultural Basins in Central Pennsylvania."

The other two authors are Robert Edwards, environmental specialist, and Charles Takita, sanitary engineer.

On Tuesday, Taylor and John Graham, an SRBC civil engineer, were at the site to explain its development, the design of the study, the findings and limitations of any information derived.

The SRBC is a single, federal-interstate agency that was formed by a compact between Maryland, New York, Pennsylvania and the federal government during the 1970s.

Its goal is to serve as the single water resources agency with authority throughout the entire Susquehanna River Basin to effect coordinated control of the use of water resources by governmental and private interests.

The continuation of the existing study areas, and the creation of a third hinges on adequate funding. The SRBC receives funds from the states involved and the federal government.

Under the Reagan-Bush administrations, according to researchers, funding for such projects was reduced and there is uncertainty about public policy to fund continued efforts to seek better knowledge in the flow of groundwater and nutrients.

This particular study was done for the purpose of furthering more specific and reliable information on the nature of groundwater under two specific farm sites.

Study May Help Nutrient Management

But, according to researchers, the data suggests that it may be possible to use the information to better design a nutrient containment and/or treatment system for use on-farm.

According to Taylor, though it is too soon to advise the use of such a system, this research, particularly that done at the study site near Halifax, may one day serve as the basis of a Best Management Practice (BMP) for nutrient management in some farming situations.

Based on their conclusions, the authors state in their recommendations that, "Concepts developed from the existing projects should be utilized in a study of the entire Armstrong Creek basin. From this, estimates could be made of the potential nutrient reduction that could be obtained by collecting and treating localized groundwater discharges using field drains and constructed wetlands."

It should be understood that the goal of nutrient management is not to reduce the proper use of nutrients.

The goal of nutrient management is to prevent uncontrolled amounts of nutrients, primarily nitrogen, from creating an overabundance of nutrients in aquatic systems.

The difficulty in doing so is that, while a visual inspection of a particular operation in a sub-basin may not appear to be significant in contaminating water sources, it may very well be a significant factor in local or distant nutrient pollution.

The goal of the law is to reduce excessive levels of nutrients from getting into surface and groundwaters, particularly by requiring high risk operations to develop and use plans for the containment and control of nutrients.

Manure is seen as a major sources of nutrients, although feed, carcasses, and other organic matter that could decompose into basic nutrients are also to be considered.

A definition of high risk operations, though still legally incomplete, would include high-density livestock operators.

Other high risk operations could be defined as those in which the level of competancy or concern of its operator to implement reasonable nutrient controls is apparently low.

Study Isolates Flows

In general, the report showed that nutrients being applied to the land can be contained in "shallow groundwater" if the shallow groundwater can be captured through the use of drainage pipes and directed to a single collection site.

According to the research, the field drain collected about 43 percent of the water, while about 47 percent was attributed to loss through evapotranspiration. About 4 percent of the rainfall actually was surface runoff and another 6 percent of the total was attributed to loss as getting past the collection system.

The study notes that while measures to control soil erosion have been successful in containing surface water, they also aid in directing water to filter through the ground, carrying nutrients.

A combination of drains and erosion control devices may eventually be prescribed as a technique for farming in certain situations.

Clugston said he raises primarily corn and alfalfa, and doublecrops with rye. For the last six years he's also been trying to raise Sudex as an alternative ensiling crop, which he said is a "challenge" to use.

The farm soils are primarily second and third class, he said.

Clugston said he enjoys working with different types of research because he also learns. He said he didn't have the educational opportunities growing up, but he does have educational desire.

"Maybe that's why these types of projects fascinate me," he said.

USDA, PSU Collaborate On Pasture Research

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A new Center for Pasture Research and Education has been established in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

A collaborative effort with the USDA Pasture Research Laboratory on the University Park Campus, the center brings together 18 agricultural scientists and several extension educators dedicated to improving the sustainability and profitability of animal agriculture through better use of grassland.

"Feed costs account for 50 to 60 percent of expenses in a dairy enterprise," said Steven Fales, professor of crop management and co-director of the center with Larry Muller, professor of dairy science.

"Pennsylvania farmers raise more than 60 percent of their feed, but purchased forage and grain still make up a considerable amount of the operating costs," Muller said. "We hope to reduce these costs and increase profitability by helping farmers make better use of pasture."

Because efficient pasture use entails effective management of plants, animals, soils and other resources, most of the center's projects will cut across academic disciplines. The center includes experts in engineering, economics, animal science crops, soils, and ruminant nutrition.

"We're emphasizing a pasture's potential economic advantages," said Muller. "Producers won't adopt grazing technology unless pasture systems offer a higher profit at reasonable risk. Efficient pasture use could make the difference between some farmers surviving and remaining competitive or going out of business.

Penn State farm profitability studies have found that intensive rotational grazing can increase returns by an average of $125 per year per cow, depending on commodity prices, production costs, and technology used on the farm.

Penn State studies also indicate that pasture use is rising. In a 1993 survey of 1,200 Pennsylvania dairy farmers, more than 29 percent said they use grazing as their primary forage source during the pasture season. About 16 percent use a rotational grazing system. The results also suggest pasture use is likely to rise — more than 18 percent of respondents said they intend to increase grazing in the next five years.

Not all farmers should rush into grazing though. "Large herds and pasture located long distances from the barn and milking facilities may make intensive grazing impractical," said Muller.

To exchange research findings and other information, the center has created an advisory council with representatives from production agriculture, financial institutions, the feed industry and other organizations and agencies. "Input from farmers and others will help us design research projects and educational programs that address their concerns," Fales said.

One project under way in the center examines the possible impact of grazing practices on groundwater quality. "We're evaluating how various grazing systems, livestock densities, fertilization schemes and soil types affect nitrate contamination of groundwater," Fales said. Penn State researchers also are evaluating different plant mixes to see which provide the most nutrition and the longest growing season for the least money.

Penn State Pasture Researchers Test Concentrate Feeder

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — A computerized concentrate feeder developed and tested at Penn State may help farmers to feed well-timed supplements to cows on pasture. The mobile feeder is designed to help dairy farmers cut feed costs through more efficient use of pasture.

"To sustain high milk production when a herd is on pasture, farmers need to ensure that their cows get adequate nutrition through grains or concentrates," according to Dr. Dennis Buckmaster, assistant professor of agricultural engineering in the College of Agricultural Sciences. "But the timing of concentrate feeding is very important."

Grazing often forces farmers to feed cows concentrates at milking time, because grain feeders usually are kept inside the barn. "But feeding cows two or three large meals of grain each day upsets the cow's digestive system and keeps it from using nutrients efficiently," he said. "Offering grain or concentrates to cows while they're actually on pasture may help stabilize digestion and maintain high milk production.

"Computer feeders allow farmers to control individual cow rations, monitor feed intake, and break up grain feeding into several small meals during the day," said Buckmaster. "But they're designed to stay in the barn. The Penn State prototype feeder can be wheeled into the pasture, allowing the cows to eat feed supplements when they feel like it."

The prototype was designed and built by Mark Gardner, who received a master's degree in agricultural engineering from Penn State in 1994. Gardner received the 1994 Young Scientist Award from the American Forage and Grassland Council for his work on the feeder.

The prototype feeder looks like a short grain bin attached to a trailer. The feeder's stalls have sensors that detect identification tags worn by each cow, telling the computer to dispense grain or concentrate according to the farmer's ration plan for that animal.

The device was tested last summer in a joint effort of the agricultural and biological engineering and dairy and animal science departments. "We know the feeder works and that cows on pasture will use it," said Buckmaster.

Dr. Larry Muller, professor of dairy science, and graduate assistant Douglas Hongerholt currently are gathering more detailed data on dairy cows' feed intake, milk production and general behavioral responses to the feeder.

Researchers also are looking at ways to make the feeder more energy-efficient. "Because it would be used in pasture, away from easily accessible electric outlets, the prototype was built with two power sources, a diesel generator and an experimental solar-powered battery," Buckmaster said. "The solar modules couldn't provide enough power to maintain an acceptable battery charge with the current design, but if we can make the electrical system more efficient, solar power could be a very viable option."

Buckmaster is a member of Penn State's Center for Pasture Research and Education, a collaborative effort with the USDA Pasture Research Laboratory on the University Park Campus. The center brings together 18 agricultural scientists dedicated to lowering feed costs on Pennsylvania farms by improving the utilization of pasture.

ABS/Alcide Corp. Give New Look To Products

DeFOREST, Wis. — American Breeders Service (ABS) has recently introduced a new look to the Alcide product lines. Designed to aid in accurate presentation of information, ABS and Alcide have recently introduced new labels for all lines of their udder care products currently marketed through the ABS sales network.

These new labels will be consistent in wording and layout, enabling dairy producers to find and understand directions, and precautions more easily. Additionally, the new labels are color coded to specifically identify the different products from one another.

With the redesign of the Alcide product labels, ABS will lead the industry by offering information in both English and Spanish.

"With the growing interest globally and the fact that much of the world speaks Spanish, we are excited to be able to provide this key product information to the users of the ABS/Alcide products in their native language, without having to segregate product packages," said Jim Winter, ABS director of animal care products.

NCFC Urges Strong Action

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Council of Farmer Cooperatives joined a coalition of 19 food and agricultural groups last week in calling for strong U.S. action to maintain the ability of U.S. agriculture to remain viable and competitive; meet domestic and overseas food needs; and realize the full potential of the recently completed Uruguay Round GATT agreement.

In a meeting with Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy, NCFC President Wayne Boutwell and the other coalition leaders called for the Administration to maintain funding and support for a variety of export and food assistance programs.

"Under the current budget proposal, many of these programs would be substantially reduced, and in some cases eliminated," Boutwell said. "If Congress approves these reductions, they would go into effect before the GATT implementing date without similar requirements from other countries, putting U.S. agriculture at a tremendous disadvantage."

In order to keep agriculture competitive, the coalition urged the establishment of an "Agricultural Investment and Market Expansion" (AIME) program.

Utilizing existing funds, AIME would: (1) consolidate existing export programs which maintaining their current level of funding and authority; (2) require the full use of such funds and authorities as allowed under GATT; and (3) make available any funds not used for such purposes to be reinvested, as allowed under GATT, to meet these objectives.

The coalition also pointed out that, while the GATT agreement requires a reduction in such trade-distorting measures, it does not eliminate them. In fact, the agreement allows countries, including the European Union (EU), to increase their use of export subsidies for selected commodities in the near term. It also allows countries to maintain and increase their support for various "green box" programs, which are non-trade distorting. Such programs include market development, market promotion, and food assistance.

"Agriculture is aware that its growth potential lies in the global marketplace," Boutwell said. "As trade barriers are reduced, the U.S. food and agricultural system will reach its full potential. However, U.S. trade policies have to keep up with the changes taking place."

"As a result, U.S. agriculture must have government support within the limits of GATT if it is to compete effectively," Boutwell concluded. "AIME will provide the programs and funds to do that."

Members of the coalition include: American Farm Bureau Federation, American Meat Institute, American Sheep Industry Association, American Soybean Association, Coalition for Food Aid, National Association of Wheat Growers, National Barley Growers Association, National Broiler Council, National Cattlemen's Association, National Corn Growers Association, National Cotton Council, National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, National Grange, National Milk Producers Federation, National Pork Producers Council, National Potato Council, National Sunflower Association, National Turkey Federation, and Rice Millers Association.

How Can It Apply?

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HALIFAX (Dauphin Co.) — A study by the Susquehanna River Basin Commission suggests a possibility for creating innovative systems for agricultural nutrient and chemical control.

The fact that this is suggests a variety of means to protect deep groundwater seems significant, given that the State Conservation Commission is currently creating regulations for the administration of the state's Nutrient Management Act.

Those regulations are to be finalized by July 1995.

The 15-member Nutrient Management Advisory Board that serves to review and comment on proposed regulations has been struggling with a dispute over the degree to which regulation should detail techniques for managing nutrients on farms.

Basically, the dispute rests on whether to create regulations that would contain specific detail on what is allowed, or to create regulations that would permit a wide scope of practices, including those yet-unrecognized.

From the regulatory perspective, without a degree of specificity there can be no assurances of groundwater and surface water protection.

The rationale is that, if the regulations are too loose, so will be the management of nutrients.

From the perspective of those who seek to keep regulations open-ended, there can be no successful progress made in developing practical, effective controls of nutrients, unless sound ideas of nutrient control are allowed to be put into practice.

This is especially since the field of nutrient control is young, the range of approved practices narrow, and funds for research to develop approved practices are not dependable.

Further, those who seek open language contend that allowing only nutrient management practices as spelled out in law would delay the use of new or improved systems, and at the same time force producers to bear the cost of undesired and potenitally inferior systems.

While the debate is more complicated, the application of the SRBC study to the ongoing work of the Nutrient Management Advisory Board is tied into ongoing board discussions.

As far as the work done at the Paul Clugston farm in Halifax, the conclusions of the SRBC are significant in its implications of how little is really known about agricultural nutrient control techniques and how fast the technology can change.

The SRBC conclusions conflict with some of theories held by those attempting to make regulations.

The SRBC conclusions were:

•Shallow ground water in agricultural areas contains high nitrates.

•Nitrate concentration is only partly related to current farming practices.

Edna McClure's Pie Baking Hits 43,862 Total

MIRIAM WERT
Juniata Co. Correspondent

PORT ROYAL (Juniata Co.) — In the world of baseball, those who excel in batting, pitching, hitting, and fielding often make it into the Baseball Hall of Fame.

Edna McClure of RR 1, Port Royal qualifies for the Hall of Fame but, instead of a bat, she uses a rolling pin and has had 43,862 "hits" in 35 years — a perfect batting record. She has had no errors, and her "pitching" into the work of making 43,862 pies gives her a perfect all-around record.,

Edna's "Hall of Fame" record has fans not only in her native Juniata County but in other areas as well. After she really got started in baking pies to sell, she sent many each week to Harrisburg where her son and her brother-in-law filled orders from other employees where they worked. At that time, (1968) her large pies sold for $1. That sounds like a small amount, but then Edna recalls that cornstarch was 10¢ a box whereas it is 79¢ now, and that all ingredients of the crust and the fillings have increased in cost accordingly.

Other "fans" are the customers from many areas who stop to eat at Spruce Hill Lunch, owned and operated by daughter Carlen, where Edna's pies are a great drawing card. Many come from Lancaster County and other more distant points.

When asked about favorite pies, Edna said that for "in-season" fillings, she finds rhubarb custard to be the favorite for cut pies in the restaurant and for pies ordered whole. The year-round favorite is coconut cream, with lemon sponge probably next in line. Husband Harvey's favorite is rhubarb custard, and Edna likes them all and so has no real favorite.

As so often happens, people want to know the secret of Edna's success. Of course the first required ingredients are hard work and a disciplined schedule. As to her recipes, Edna has made no attempt to keep them a secret. They have been in her head for so many years that there is no hesitation in knowing them exactly, but she had never put them in writing until recently.

This winter she wrote all of her recipes for Carlen so that she could have "The Pie Book" printed by Impressions Printing and Publishing of Mifflintown. This has added to Edna's fame because the book was an instant success! The first printing was 125, but they were all sold in seven days. Carlen has taken orders for 525 more, and the second printing will be available by the time this story is published. Carlen notes that they are already becoming a collector's item and are being bought by women who do not even bake pies. The taste of nostalgia appeals to them, as they read Edna's notes of the origination of many of the recipes and other personal notes.

The book has 27 pages with recipes for 19 pies as well as for the crust and for mincemeat. Carlen takes care of the orders and sale of the book because Edna is totally hearing impaired. Orders for "The Pie Book" may be sent to Spruce Hill Lunch, R R 1, Box 824, Port Royal, PA 17082. Cost is $5 + 30¢ tax and $1 shipping, or a total of $6.30. Check should be made payable to Spruce Hill Lunch.

For those who wish to stop in it, it is important to note that Spruce Hill Lunch is open only on Thursdays and Fridays from 9:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., and Saturdays and Sundays from 8:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. It has been necessary for Carlen to reduce her hours in recent months due to various illnesses and injuries in the family, and she does not want folks to drive a long distance only to find Spruce Hill Lunch closed.

Now, let's go back to the beginning years of this "Hall of Famer." Born on a farm in Licking Creek, a few miles from Mifflin, Edna had two older brothers. Because of her present reputation for baking, we might think that Edna spent a lot of time in the kitchen with her mother. Not so! She much preferred being in the fields helping her father and so never learned much in the kitchen. She fondly recalls how she and others swam in the "crick" and went ice skating on Zook's Dam from a very early age to age 45 when she stopped because she had broken her shoulder (but not while skating). She still enjoys swimming.

Edna graduated from Juniata Joint High School in 1944 and is thrilled that, at their 50th year class reunion this year, the committee will give her pie book as a favor to those in attendance.

Between graduation and marriage, Edna worked at a sewing factory and as a waitress at Bratton's Restaurant (now closed) in Mifflin. Even there, the closest she came to cooking was making sodas!

She married T. Harvey McClure of Port Royal in 1946, and they lived as tenant farmers on the Paul McClure farm for four years. The next eight years they were tenant farmers on a Groninger Valley farm.

When asked if she enjoyed cooking after marriage, Edna's answer was definitely affirmative. She made her own bread, and still does, "from scratch." She also enjoyed making cornmeal mush, which she still makes for Spruce Hill Lunch. Even though Edna made pies in her earlier years of marriage, she never felt she was good at it. Then she was hired as a pie-maker by Zimmie's Restaurant (now closed) near Mifflintown, with the understanding that the manager would teach her how to make them! She baked pies there two nights a week.

In 1968, Edna decided that she would start making her own pies to sell, and so she took orders and became so busy that she never had to advertise. She wanted especially to work at home because she was helping to raise a grandson, Steve, and wanted to be there for him.

When asked how she kept record of the number of pies she has baked, Edna brought out a very efficiently-kept record book, started in 1968. The book lists how many and what type of pies she baked each day. In the back, as a summary, she has charts showing totals for each week, month, and year. When she started that book 26 years ago, little could Edna have realized what it would mean to her and others now.

Since 1976, when Carlen opened Spruce Hill Lunch, all orders for Edna's pies have gone through there, and she has also kept the restaurant supplied with her special pies for sale by the piece. Rheumatoid arthritis has taken its toll on her hands so that they are quite crippled, most likely from all of that pie crust rolling. Although she does not make those palatable pies as quickly or as often now, she still makes 35 each week for her favorite customer, Spruce Hill Lunch, along Route 75 about 6 miles south of Port Royal.

Edna's most loyal fan and helper has been her husband, Harvey, who retired from the Montgomery Ward store in Lewistown when it closed in 1981. Since then he has helped Carlen at the restaurant and has helped Edna to prepare the fruit for her pies. Recently he has had to slow down in his helpfulness due to ill health.

A helpful hint that came out in the interview is that Edna and Harvey mix 50 pounds of flour with shortening at one time and store it in the cold until she needs crusts. Perhaps "pie on a moment's notice" could be Edna's motto.

In addition to daughter Carlen, the McClures have another daughter, Ellen, who is married to Jay Hockenbrock. They both teach in the Big Spring School District.

Harvey and Edna also have a son, Furman, who lives near Newport and works as a machinist for Lebanon Valley Offset Printing Company. He and his wife have one son.

Carlen's son, Steve, is the grandson who was the reason that Edna wanted to work at home back in 1968. He had a close call with death in the Blizzard of '93, and the story of how he survived will be in an upcoming issue of "Guideposts." Steve still lives with Edna and Harvey but, after nearly a year of rehab, he drives daily to State College to his work at Nittany Valley Offset Printing.

Edna says that she takes little credit for her ability as a pie maker for she feels it is a God-given talent. She has lived her life with faith in God, and he has faithfully carried her and her family through many trials of flood, sickness, and accident. This Hall of Famer has not allowed her complete loss of hearing to ruin her sweet spirit of her love for people. Edna and daughters, Carlen and Ellen, have learned sign language. Carlen signed the questions to her mother during the interview. Like a real champion, Edna has overcome obstacles and hardships, and she continues to bless many with her talent of making pies.

Edna McClure in her home, with husband Harvey who has been of great help and support to her in her pie making.

Partial results of a typical day of baking pies for Edna McClure. Shown are coconut cream, blueberry, apple and raisin crumb. She holds a coconut pie, one of a number that she got up at 5:00 a.m. to start baking.

VOTE FOR RIDGE MAY 10.

Tom Ridge tells DER to shape up

Tom Ridge, who's seeking the Republican nomination for governor May 10, leads top-selling Penn-Gate Leadman Faith at recent Pennsylvania Holstein Association's Convention Sale. As a congressman in rural northwest Pa., he understands agriculture and promises a farmer-friendly administration.

Don't get Tom Ridge started on the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources. He's had it up to here with DER's strong arm tactics.

A six-term congressman from Erie, he has long championed farmer rights on wetlands and other environmental issues at the federal level.

Now as a candidate seeking the Republican nomination for governor, Ridge has taken direct aim at DER.

"We can protect the environment without crippling the farmer's ability to compete," Ridge insists. Here's how he plans to do it:

Take an axe to DER, splitting it into two smaller, more responsive departments. One handling environmental protection, the other overseeing state parks and forests.

Put halter on DER bullies. The new DER will be a "partner of farmers rather than prosecutor," Ridge insists.

Speed up permit process immediately with an executive order and provide exemptions for normal farming practices. "We shouldn't make farmers wait months before using their land," Ridge says.

Involve farmers and others in the decision making before regulations are written. Result: fairer, more workable regs.

Work one on one with farmers trying to cope with new regulations. No more "you figure it out". Under Ridge it will be, "We'll work together."

Live and let live, I say.

News headlines aside, I still believe that a large majority of mankind is basically law abiding and peaceloving. Most want to live their lives in freedom, providing for their and their families' basic needs, maintaining friendships, and in the proverbial pursuit of happiness. Most, I think, will avoid conflict when possible.

Reality being what it is, conflict of some degree and of some sort is inevitable.

That's what I thought when I looked in the strawberry bed.

In addition to spending most of our waking hours in efforts directed toward the well-being of the dairy herd and the land that supports them, we enjoy animals in general. Thus the dog is allowed to sprawl on the basement couch during rainy weather, the house cat provided with on-demand, in-and-out door service, and the barn cats granted a share of fresh, warm milk after morning and evening chores.

We maintain assorted birdhouses, hand-carry to the creek the occasional frog that turns up in the milkhouse and risk cold-weather dunkings repairing the goose nest in the middle of the pond. A high-rise osprey nest platform towers over the water for the rare visits they make; the resident redtail hawks favors it for soying across the meadow.

If a deer appears in the alfalfa field, we drop whatever we're doing to watch. Fox kits playing along the woods send us for the field glasses — through one of last year's probably dined on a neighbor's escaped chukkar partridge that turned up in a corner of our yard recently — then promptly disappeared.

And the sunflower seed supply is plummenting due to the mother squirrel that sits on the feeder and stuffs her face for a half an hour, every hour. She needs the nourishment since she appears to be nursing three, maybe four, baby squirrels. (What's a baby squirrel called? A squirrel-ette?)

Then, there's The Snake.

Garter snakes, milk snakes, black snakes, water snakes, have lived here far longer than we have and have always resided with us in closer proximity than we usually dwell upon. They're never heard and usually only rarely seen. An occasional shed skin left behind here or there is usually all we see as evidence of their existence.

Except for The Snake.

The Snake is a long, chubby, unusually tame water snake which lives in the stone walls of our springhouse during warmer months. During the winter, she hibernates on an edge of the covered spring itself — much to the dismay of our dairy inspectors when they take water samples.

On sunny days, The snake will drape herself over the nooks and crannies of the stone wall. Or across a multiflora rosebush on the bank of the adjacent pond. Or stretch out across the old cattails and algae along the water's edge.

We know she's generally there, so we watch for her.

Reason we think she's a she is that other, smaller versions have turned up in recent years. Nice summer mornings, as many as four variable sizes of Snake may be curled together, Now, I've found another. Or one that relocated.

This one, a youngster, prefers the side of the springhouse toward the yard, in a corner I just put into use as a temporary strawberry bed. Due to an unexpected and untimely renovations of the patch, sections of old plants had to be lifted and relocated in hopes of salvaging at least part of the berry crop. And, Snake, Jr. has taken to sunning itself smack in the middle of my make-do berry bed.

Live and let live, I say. We're gonna' continue to live here.

And Snake Jr. will continue to live here. A quarter-mile away. In the swamp.

Osteoporosis: Key Treatment Remains Prevention

Osteoporosis is one of the most common and yet little understood diseases of middle and old age. Its impact on one's health status, lifestyle and emotional well-being can be devastating.

Some health professionals feel that osteoporosis - a major form of bone loss in post-menopausal women - has reached epidemic proportions. Approximately one in four of these individuals will suffer at least one fracture by the age of 65.

But what causes osteoporosis and how can it be treated effectively? While the development of osteoporosis is a complex process with nutritional, physical, hormonal, genetic and racial factors involved, three of the major contributors to osteoporosis include the following:

Calcium deficiency may be caused by two major factors — inadequate intake of calcium-rich foods or decreased availability of calcium. Low calcium intake accelerates bone loss, while an increased intake slows that process.

Lack of regular exercise causes individuals to lose bone at a high rate. Conversely, individuals who exercise regularly seem to be better protected against bone loss.

Sex differences and the corresponding hormones play a role in maintaining strong bones. As the female hormone, estrogen, decreases after menopause, the bones contribute a larger share of calcium to meet the body's need. This is the main reason that women are eight times more likely to develop osteoporosis than men.

"Men are less likely to develop osteoporosis because of their greater bone and muscle mass," said Lawrence J. Anastasi, D.O., an osteopathic family physician. 'Men also typically consume more calcium-rich foods than women."

Although much research on the treatment of osteoporosis is in progress, physicians have not yet established the most beneficial treatment. In fact, the most effective "treatment" for osteoporosis remains prevention.

The following measures may help decrease a person's risk for osteoporosis:

- consume adequate calcium and vitamin D daily. Postmenopausal women may need more daily calcium;
- get plenty of exercise;
- replace estrogen (upon physician's recommendation);
- avoid smoking.

"As research on osteoporosis continues to unfold, future individuals may be spared this suffering in later years," said Dr. Anastasi. "But until then, prevention remains the key to help prevent bone loss."

Consuming Thoughts

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

According to the calendar, spring arrived several weeks ago. Let's just hope Mother Nature has looked at the calendar, too, and isn't going to keep switching the seasons back and forth. Even if the weather doesn't always cooperate, we can add a cheery note to our meals and snacks with fresh spring fruits and vegetables that are available now. One of the most flavorful spring fruits is the pineapple.

Although pineapples are available year round, fully half the crop moves to market from March through June. You've probably noticed pineapples have been in the market place for several weeks because Hawaii ships more pineapples in March than any other month. Puerto Rico ships more in May. These areas are the main source of pineapples and Mexico is a secondary source.

Pineapples can be used first as a decoration in the home. Set it out for a day or two to give your home a warm Polynesian touch. Be sure to keep the fruit away from heat and sunlight.

A pineapple cannot sweeten or ripen after harvest because it has no starch reserve. It is the starch reserve that improves the texture and taste of bananas and pears after harvest. A pineapple will never be any sweeter than when it was picked but it may be less acid, since some acid can be lost through respiration. Eventually, the shell color will change and the fruit will soften but these are characteristics of deterioration, not ripening.

Like peaches and tomatoes, pineapples must be harvested before they are fully ripe. This harvesting stage is sometimes called mature-green. The closer pineapple come to ripeness, the less market life it has when picked. On the other hand, the greener it is when picked, the less palatable it will be when the consumer buys it. A lot of compromising must be made.

So how do you choose a pineapple? The best advice is to let your eyes be your guide. Select one that is plump and fresh looking. Fresh, deep-green crown leaves are a good sign. A fruit that is old looking, dry and brown leaves should be avoided. Fragrance is a good sign, too, but usually the fruit is kept too cold to be fragrant. The eyes should be flat to almost hollow. Ease with which leaves can be pulled out is not a sign of good quality. The thump test is of no value and the shell color is not an indication of maturity. The grower can rely on a test of the sugar content using a special instrument.

Many supermarkets have cutters available which remove the skin and the core, while other produce departments have the fruit cleaned and cut in cubes and ready for immediate consumption.

Preparing a fresh pineapple at home takes only minutes. An easy way is to place it on a cutting board and slice it crosswise into about one-inch slices. Then peel the slices: thick enough to remove the eyes, or thinner and remove the eyes with the thip of a vegetable peeler. Then cut into desired shapes.

For serving in the shell, wash the pineapple. With a large knife, start at the center of the crown and saw gently down through the spikes, cutting the fruit in half lengthwise. Cut each half into two pieces. With a paring knife, cut about one-quarter inch from the skin, loosening the wedge completely. Cut the fruit into chunks and remove. Leave the shell. The shell may then be used as an attractive container in which to serve the pineapple or as one of the many salads containing pineapple.

Pie — The Ultimate Dessert

A classic among desserts, pie is perfect for any meal and any occasion that deserves a sweet ending.

The types of pie fillings available are amazing, but many accomplished cooks insist that good pie starts with the crust. Have you ever thought a pie looked absolutely scrumptious only to bite into it and be appalled by a bland or rancid flavor?

Good pie crust starts with the recipe. The rest of the secret is in rolling it out and placing it in the pie plate.

Betty Crocker suggests using a rolling pin and a lightly floured cloth-covered surface. Here are her hints:

• Flatten ball of dough slightly with your hands. Roll pastry from center to the outside edge in all directions. Give pastry a quarter turn occasionally and lift the rolling pin as it approaches the edge for even pressure.

• Roll pastry about 2 inches larger than inverted pie plate and about ⅛ -inch thick.

• To transfer pastry, fold bottom pastry into fourths. Unfold gently in pie plate with point in center, taking care not to stretch pastry.

• Fill bottom pastry, as desired. Repeat with top pastry, cutting slits in top before folding into fourths. Tuck the 1-inch overhang under edge of bottom crust. Pinch top and bottom edges together to seal pastry.

• While fluting decorative edge, press a 2- to 3-inch strip of aluminum foil over fluted edge so that crust doesn't brown too much. Take away foil 15 mintues before end of baking time.

CINNAMON-WALNUT APPLE PIE

Crust:
- 2½ cups flour
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¾ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 cup cold butter, cut in pieces
- 4 to 6 tablespoons ice water

Filling:
- 10 cups sliced apples
- 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
- ½ cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
- 1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- ½ cup coarsely chopped toasted walnuts
- ¼ teaspoon ginger
- 2 tablespoons butter
- Milk and sugar

For crust, combine flour, sugar, salt, and cinnamon in food processor. Add butter; process until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. With machine running, add water 1 tablespoon at a time. Process just until dough holds together. Shape dough into two flat disks. Wrap in plastic wrap. Refrigerate at least one hour or overnight.

For filling, toss apples with lemon juice in large bowl. Combine sugar, tapioca, cinnamon, and nutmeg and sprinkle over apples along with walnuts and ginger. Toss until apples are well coated. Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Roll half of dough on lightly floured work surface to form 13-inch circle. Line 9-inch pie plate with pastry; trim excess. Arrange apple mixture in pie plate. Roll remaining half of dough to 12-inch circle. Place top crust over filling. Trim edges; fold under and press edges to seal. Brush crust lightly with milk. Decorate top of pie with apple and leaf cutouts using scraps of pastry, if desired. Cut four 1-inch long slits in top of pie. Sprinkle entire pie lightly with sugar. Bake 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees. Bake until golden brown and filling is bubbly, about 40 minutes. Serve warm or at room temperature.

MILK PIE

- ½ cup flour
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1½ cups milk
- ¼ cup evaporated milk or sweet cream

Mix flour and sugar on bottom of unbaked pie shell. Dot with butter. Add milk and cream. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Bake 400 degrees on lowest rack in oven until tart starts to brown. Reduce heat to 350 degrees until done when knife inserted in middle comes out clean.

When a restaurant becomes famous for one of its specialty foods, it usually refuses to divulge recipes. After all, competition might imitate those recipes. But the Spruce Hill Lunch generously shares the pie recipes for which their restaurant has become well known.

Edna MClure is the pie baker and she has kept record of every pie she has baked since 1968 — all 43,682 of them.

Read Edna's story on page B2 in this issue. Her favorite pie recipes have been compiled and published as The Pie Book. You can purchase a copy of it for $6.30, which covers postage and handling. Make your checks payable to Spruce Hill Lunch and mail to R.R. 1, Box 824, Port Royal, PA 17082.

COCONUT CREAM

- 2 tablespoons butter
- ¼ cup cream cornstarch
- ¾ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups milk
- 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Melt butter, blend in cornstarch, sugar, and salt. Gradually add milk, heat to boiling over direct heat, stirring constantly. Stir in slightly beaten egg yolk, return to heat and cook 2 minutes again stirring constantly. Add vanilla, pour directly into baked pie shell.

Meringue:
- 4 egg whites
- ¼ teaspoon cream of tarter
- 2½ tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon sugar for one pie

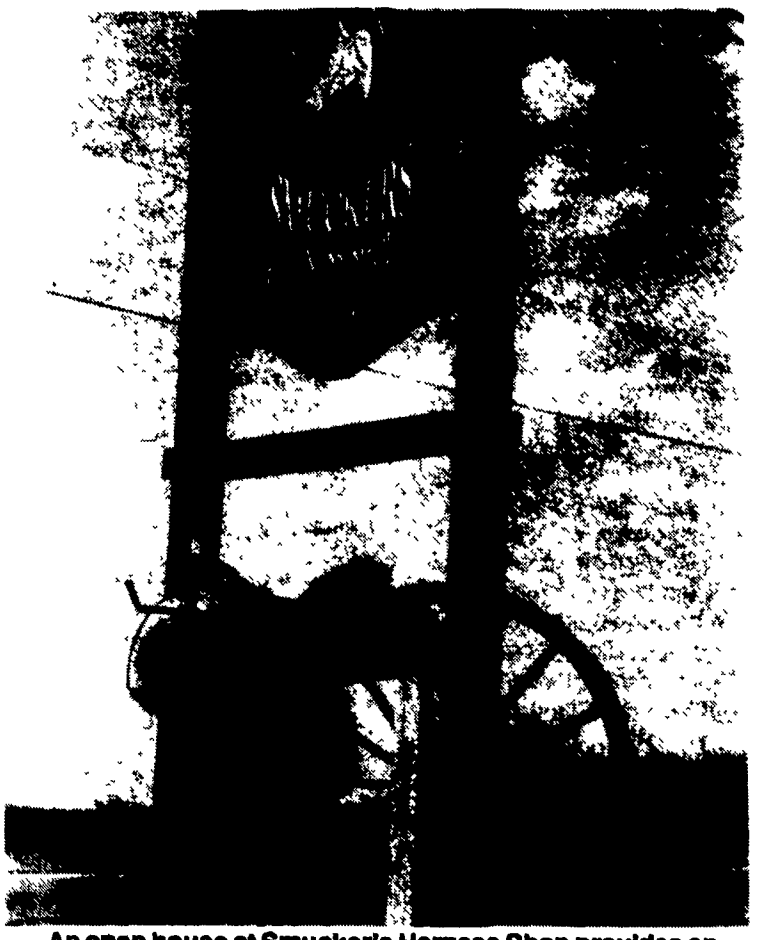
Beat egg whites and cream of tarter with mixer until very stiff. Beat until sugar is dissolved and egg whites stand in peaks. Seal well to edges. Sprinkle with coconut. Bake in 400 degree oven until meringue is evenly browned.

Smucker's Harness Shop Is Site For Book Signing

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

CHURCHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Hollywood is a long way from the tiny, quaint village of Churchtown, but that doesn't stop the likes of Kenny Rogers and Michael Jackson from finding Moses B. Smucker, who fashions the finest leather harnesses in his small-town shop.

Smucker's workmanship is found on the harnesses handcrafted for the trolley cars at Disneyland in California, the bells worn by the Clydesdale horses in the Budweiser Christmas commercial, for horses at Ringling Brothers Circus, and for multimillionaire Donald Trump.



An open house at Smucker's Harness Shop provides an opportunity for visitors to see the place where harnesses are made for television commercials, Disneyland in California, Kenny Rogers, Michael Jackson, Donald Trump, and the Ringling Brothers.

You can visit Smucker's Harness Shop during their open house on Friday, May 6 from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. and on Saturday, May 7 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

And you can read about Moses in a book written by Mary T. Petrofske, who will be at the open house to autograph her recently published book, "Recollections of Caernarvon Township." The book, which is a portrait of the Lancaster County community from 1930 to 1993, is filled with fascinating stories of folks like Moses and personal reminiscences told by the heirs of this legacy-rich area.

Petrofske, a free-lance writer for 20 years and a newspaper reporter, became interested in the area when she covered local government and wrote features for the newspaper.

"I always thought there should be a book about this area," she said.

She was thrilled when the board of directors from the Friends of Bangor, a nonprofit organization dedicated to the preservation of the 1722 Bangor Episcopal Church, commissioned her to write the book.

The board of directors helped her by taping interviews with local people.

"They did such a great job that when I listened to the tapes, I felt like I was right there." she said.

The whole community worked together. Some contributed ideas, others brought in pictures that were stored in their attics, and some even wrote a few pages.

"The story just wrote itself," said Petrofske, who had feared that it would be difficult to compile chronologically the tales, local lore, excerpts from diaries, letters, and old newspaper clippings.

She found it easy to structure the text into three sections, "Community Spirit," "Main Street," and "Industry to Agriculture". Maps and photographs illustrate each section that sparkle with human interest narratives.

Proceeds from the sale of the 240-page hardcovered book will be used to create an endowment fund for the upkeep of the 260-year-old Bangor Episcopal Church listed on the National Register of Historical Places.

Refreshments will be served and ample parking is available at the open house. Smucker's Harness Shop is located on Route 23 in the village of Churchtown, between Blue Ball and Morgantown.

Books are available for purchase at Smucker's, at the Churchtown Supply, and at the Olde Springfield Shoppe, 10 W. Main St. Elverson. Books may be purchased by mail for $35 plus $4.50 per book for postage and handling. Make check payable to Friends of Bangor and mail to Mary Petrofske, P.O. Box 112, Narvon, PA 17555-0112.

ANSWER — A reader would like a recipe for molasses coconut Easter eggs. Thanks to A. Moyer, for sending a recipe that she had clipped from this paper several years ago.

Molasses Coconut Eggs

¾ cup light cream
½ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
¼ cup molasses
2 tablespoons baking molasses
2 tablespoons butter
3 cups flaked coconut

Place cream, sugars, molasses and butter in a heavy saucepan. Bring to a boil, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Boil over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until a soft ball forms when a small amount is dropped into cold water. Remove from heat. Add coconut, stir well. Drop by teaspoonfuls on a greased cookie sheet. Shape into eggs when cool enough to handle. Chill. Dip into melted chocolate made from the following:

12 ounces semi-sweet chocolate bits
2 tablespoons vegetable shortening, melted

ANSWER — Ruth Cantello, Somerset, N.J., wanted a recipe for apple cider donuts. Thanks to Karen Byers, St. Thomas, for sending a recipe.

Spicy Apple Juice Doughnuts

3 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg
2 eggs
¼ cup butter, softened
½ cup sugar
¾ cup apple juice

Sift together flour, baking powder, cinnamon, salt and nutmeg. Beat together eggs, butter, and sugar. Stir in flour mixture alternately with the apple juice, beating after each addition. Cover and chill dough for 2 hours. Roll chilled dough to 3/8-inch thickness on well-floured board. Cut with doughnut flour cutter. Deep fry at 375 degrees until golden brown on both sides. Drain on paper towels. While warm, shake in plastic bag containing granulated or confectioners' sugar.

ANSWER — Linda Stump, Mechanicsburg, wanted a recipe to make grape wine from frozen grape concentrate. Thanks to Mary Jane Heidlebaugh, Stewartstown, for sending her recipe.

Balloon Wine

2 12-ounce cans frozen grape juice concentrate
4 cups sugar
½ teaspoon yeast

Put juice, sugar, and yeast in a glass gallon jug and fill almost to the brim with tap water. Place large balloon on top of jug (do not use cork or lid of bottle). As the balloon inflates, the wine will ferment and the sugar dissolve. Keep in warm place. When the balloon falls over (deflates), the wine is ready to strain and bottle.

ANSWER — Evelyn Snooks wanted a Thai recipe for sticky rice and a soybean custard to scoop on the sticky rice. Thanks to a western New York reader for sending a sticky rice recipe. She does not have a soybean custard recipe but sent an alternate that she thinks readers will enjoy. She writes that sticky rice requires a glutinous rice that can be purchased in Asian grocery stores. It's served both as a main course accompaniment and in desserts. Mango and sticky rice is a common snack that can be bought from vendors on Thai city streets.

Sticky Rice

Rinse a cup of rice several times until water runs clear (removes starch), then soak for 12 hours or overnight. Line an in-pot steamer with cheesecloth or similarly woven fabric, pour in rice and spread flat across steamer. Steam until tender and fluffy. If your steamer has short legs, be carefult not to let the water boil away.

Pineapple Sauce

Put a one-pound can of unsweetened pineapple chunks or crushed pineapple on the stove to simmer, reserving a little juice. Add 2 teaspoons cornstarch to reserved juice and stir or shake until dissolved. When pineapple is simmering, add cornstarch mixture and stir constantly until sauce thickens. Stir in a teaspoon or so of powdered ginger, more or less to suit your taste. Spoon over sticky rice in individual bowls. Serves 4 to 6. Could also use prepared pineapple topping, adding in ginger or skip the cornstarch and use two tablespoons of light corn syrup to thicken and sweeten sauce.

ANSWER — Mimi Stoltzfus, Lewisburg, wanted a recipe for honey-mustard pretzels. Thanks to Darlene Heisey, Mt. Pleasant Mills, and Rose Blessing, for sending recipes. Darlene sent a recipe for seasoned pretzels that she and her husband like better than the honey mustard pretzels.

Honey Mustard Baked Pretzels

1 pound broken hard pretzels
1 cup melted butter
1 package mustard or honey Dijon dry salad mix

In a large kettle, mix the butter and dry salad mix. Add broken pretzels and stir until the pretzels are well coated with the buttered mixture. Put the pretzels in two 9x13-inch cake pans. Bake at 250 degrees for about one hour. Stir pretzels every 20 minutes while baking.

Hidden Valley Pretzels

1 cup oil
1 package Hidden Valley Ranch dressing mix
1 tablespoon dill weed
1 tablespoon lemon pepper
1 tablespoon garlic powder
1 bag broken pretzels

Mix together oil, dressing mix, dill weed, lemon pepper, and garlic powder. Add pretzels. Pour onto cookie sheet. Bake for 10 mintues at 300 degrees. Stir the pretzels and bake for 10 more minutes.

Gwen Owens Tells How She Juggles Family And Career

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Gwen Owens knows what it is like to juggle career, home, church, and community responsibilities. The co-anchor of WGAL News 8's Morning Report survives on only four to five hours of sleep each night in her attempt to do a good job at everything she does.

But a television viewer watching her dynamic presentation would never suspect that Gwen is — tired.

Gwen divulged her battle with fatigue and secrets for juggling a full-time career and family when she spoke recently at the Berks county Extension Spring Awareness Day.

She said that she arises each morning at 2 o'clock in order to leave her Philadelphia home and arrive at the Lancaster television station to write the news copy and to broadcast at 6 a.m. She returns home at 2:30 p.m. except for three days a week when she is working on special projects or doing a public relations appearance.

Then, its caring for two preschoolers while her husband Kevin works until 9 p.m.

How does she do it?

Three factors: "I'm a firm believer that God doesn't give us more than we can handle. I look to God every morning for guidance and find in Him a firm foundation," she said.

Another factor is a supportive husband who cheers her on and gets the children up, feeds, and dresses them each morning.

Then, there's Gwen's mother, whom Gwen calls "The Rock of Gilbrater," who cares for the children during the day.

In her job, Gwen said that she is fortunate that she is by nature a talker and a good writer.

As a child, Gwen was known to talk nonstop. Her mother would sometimes try to silence her by saying, "Gwendolyn, let's have five minutes of quiet."

"It was impossible for me to be quiet more than two minutes," said Gwen who now asks her mom, "Did you ever imagine that I would grow up and actually get paid for talking?"

Despite career and personal successes, Gwen has needed to make sacrifices to juggle both career and family.

To move up in the newscasting world requires moving from station to station. Before marrying, Gwen postponed her wedding twice in order to secure a firmer position in her career. While her husband-to-be was patient, Gwen eventually decided that it was time to put her professional life on the back burner and take care of her personal life.

She quit her news anchor job in Virginia and accepted a less challenging job in order to marry and live in Philadelphia with her husband. Eventually, she was hired by Channel 8, which is close enough to commute but the three hours spent commuting siphons time from her already hectic schedule.

Recently, Gwen fell asleep and hit a telephone pole. Although she escaped serious injury, the accident made her realize that her body is too tired to handle so much responsibility. She has slowed down in her public appearances, but finds it extremely difficult to say "no" to opportunities with students.

"I think I can be a role model for kids and I feel guilty to turn them down. But my family is most important. I can't do everything," Gwen said.

Gwen reminded the women in the audience that no one is a superwoman, that it is important to put family before career, that everyone needs a higher power from which to draw strength, and that everyone needs a supportive spouse or friend to cheer them on.

Tip From Cumberland County

Dairy Princess Diane Myers

One myth about sports and milk is that milk causes "cotton mouth". The dryness and discomfort in the mouth, called "cotton mouth" is caused by emotional stress, pre-event anxiety, and lack of fluids. "Cotton mouth" is not caused by drinking milk.

Drinking milk or using dairy products aids in the resistance against stress fractures and other sports injuries. So grab a glass of milk or a cup of yogurt and head off to your favorite spring activity.

Let's Keep America Beautiful

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Correspondent

SOMERSET CO. — April is Keep America Beautiful Month. I know, I know, it isn't news because your teachers and others have been talking about it for weeks.

I suppose that everybody where you live is bustling around to plant trees like they are here where I live.

Supermarkets and businesses are giving away scads of young trees so kids and adults will think about the importance of trees and forests to our daily lives.

But taking care of our country is more than planting trees. And making it a beautiful place to live means each person has some responsibility, whether a kid or an adult.

When we start keeping our country beautiful through prevention of pollution, it's a good start. First of all, don't throw trash and garbage along the roadsides and streambeds. It looks terrible and it pollutes the water and soil if left there.

Besides that, the rats come, the flies come, and then they all have dozens of babies like themselves. Before you know it, these creatures can carry awful diseases to us humans, and sometimes to other animals. So use proper methods of throwing away the stuff you don't want or need.

Lots of kids enjoy fishing in freshwater streams. When I drove along some streams I saw one really nice, clean trout stream. A fisherman was wearing waders so he could go into deeper water and cast his fishing line for a big one.

Later, I saw all kinds of trash near a popular fishing river. It was between the water and the highway and everyone passing could see it.

"Adopt . . ." programs such as "Adopt A Highway," which is used by Boy Scouts, for instance, have groups taking responsibility for regular litter pickup. These programs help America to look beautiful. But why do we continue to litter our roadsides? It makes us work harder when we have to get rid of litter twice instead of once.

Littering is illegal. In Pennsylvania, if you are caught littering you are fined $300. The state fish commission will also fine persons who throw trash along the rivers and streams in Pennsylvania.

There are loads of ways to make our communities attractive. When we each do something for our own area, together we are helping to keep our country pretty.

Of course, in the spring almost everybody rakes the grassa and plants flowers, shrubs, trees, and gardens. All of these look terrific and you can't be too young or too old to learn how it's done.

A good example of kids and adults working together was in a school district that needed a new playground. Ugh, the old oone had rusty equipment and hardly looked like a fun place to stay.

So with the help of a grant to purchase the materials, and some community fund-raisers, adults and kids built the "Wooden Kingdom." A high school senior designed the playground during his industrial arts classes and got praised for his super work.

Later, some carpentry construction experts offered to build the playground without pay. Kids who had study halls in school were allowed to go outside and work with the adults. Even though the kids didn't know all the technical stuff, they had strong muscles and could follow instructions given by the expert builders.

Those kids worked hard and made a terrific contribution to their school and to their community since the playground was for everybody. Things like this are beautiful.

Churches and even cemeteries can look beautiful when people take care of them. Country churches have a way of making me feel nice inside. We should always take care of time. They are part of America and part of the life everywhere.

I have some special treasures just outside my house, even though they are simple things. One is an unusual rock and the other is two evergreen trees.

Rocks and trees are everywhere so why should mine be special? Because the people who gave them to me died later.

My Uncle Clyde was a gentle farmer who loved people and animals. He once dug up two young trees and gave them to me. They are about 15 feet tall now. Each day when I lookat them through my kitchen window I have such good memories of him.

He made America beautiful by giving me the trees where birds can build nests and find shelter from the wind.

Aunt Rosella, my mother's sister, once lived in an isolated mountain home. When I was a kid I was scared there at night. After her husband died she moved off the mountain, nearer to other people.

Before her home was sold, she gave me the rock that I always admired. It's shaped with three sides and stands a foot tall. Because it tapers in at the top, it's unusual.

Aunt Rosella died when she got old but I see her pretty rock every day. It makes me happy even though I've never learned where she first found the rock.

Anyway, let's work to keep the land and water beautiful. Let's not throw soda cans, bottles, foil, plastic and paper products on the ground so others have to pick them up.

Let's just be more responsible. America belongs to each of us.

A beautiful and unusual rock can be a reminder of somebody special who died.

This is not a nice sight. The roadside garbage has a small river running nearby which could be polluted.

Awareness Day Examines Families Of The '90s

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — "Families have always been the backbone of society, but now the structure is threatened and the future a little uncertain," Joan Cook said to the 200 persons who attended the Spring Awareness Day held at the Berks County Agricultural Center on April 19.

To add perspective to the theme, Celebrate The International Year of the Family, the day-long program included speakers addressing health, ancestry, managing family and job, and keeping the family well dressed for less.

In addition, two Berks County Extension Homemaker's Scholarships were awarded. This year's recipients are Thomas McNamara and Anne Cassidy, both students in the nutrition program at Albright College.

Nipa Hammond

Ann Rollman from The Reading Hospital and Medical Center began the day with ways to create a healthy lifestyle with an anti-cancer action plan.

"Prevention and early detection remain the best tools available in the fight against cancer," Rollman said.

Research in cancer prevention is proving that cancer is nutritionally linked. In fact, 40 percent of cancer in men and 60 percent of cancer in women is attributed to nutrition. A low-fat diet definitely is shown to reduce breast, colon, prostrate, and many other kinds of cancer. Increasing fiber, calcium, and regular consumption of green and yellow vegetables in the diet, and regular physical exercise results is less nutritionally-linked cancer in both men and women.

Non-smokers have a much higher percentage of remaining cancer-free than smokers.

Rollman emphasized that prevention and early detection are the best tools available to fight cancer.

Nipa Hammond, a native of Thailand who has established an egg roll business in Reading, told about her transition from Thailand culture to the U.S.

Thailand customs esteem men and sons. Women are considered less than human and need to walk behind the man when appearing in public.

"When I wanted to talk with my father, I needed to make an appointment," Nipa said.

In her adjustment to American life, Nipa found it confusing and difficult in learning to be a strong woman, especially when establishing her own business. Nipa demonstrated making a native Thai dessert that was served to the audience.

In a light-hearted vein, Dr. Claude Reich traced the Pennsylvania Dutch heritage that is so prevalent in Berks County to the Pfalz section of Europe.

Celebrating The International Year of The Family

A heart sheltered by a roof, linked by another heart, to symbolize life and love in a home where one finds warmth, caring, security, togetherness, tolerance and acceptance — that is the symbolism conveyed by the emblem of the International Year of the Family (IYF), 1994. The open design is meant to indicate continuity with a hint of uncertainty. The brushstroke, with its open line roof, completes an abstract symbol representing the complexity of the family.

Gwen Owens, news anchor, told how women in the '90s can juggle both family and career. Nancy Dibbs entertained the audience with a fashion show by modeling clothing purchased second-hand. Look for separate articles on these two women in this section.

How To Be Well-Dressed For Less

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — When Nancy Dibbs walked out on stage flouncing her Liz Claiborne dress, she was greeted with both ohh's and groans from the audience at the Berks County Extension Spring Awareness Day.

The "awes" were in admiration of her ability to buy a brand name dress for a quarter. The groans were from the crowd that missed the bargain.

But with the secrets Nancy revealed, every woman present now knows how to fill her closet with clothes she can afford and even be in style.

"Clothes are not an investment, they are disposable and you should not pay much for them," this 50 plus housewife said. As the mother of five children whose ages range from 16 to 30, Nancy insisted that everyone can look wonderful for every occasion with a little imagination and a little money.

She put on a fashion show of her finds to convince the audience that clothes can be matched with accessories purchased separately while thriff shopping.

Every outfit she modeled was fully accessorized with matching shoes, purse, jacket, scarf, earrings, necklace, and even under garments.

While the average price for a fully-lined jacket is usually $6.50, Nancy has managed to find a new one with its $109 price tag still attached that cost her only $3. From a leather purse, purchased for 50 cents, Nancy pulled out a designer swimming suits purchased for $3.

When her daughter married, Nancy pulled together a mother-of-the-bride outfit that cost less than $35. The outfit included a silk dress, dyed shoes to match and embellished with crystal clip earrings, a matching sequin evening bag, and jewelry.

With humor and gestures, Nancy entertained the audience with stories of digging in rummage piles and coming up with treasures. When Nancy thriff shops, she doesn't stick to clothing but shops for appliances, antique glassware, and every conceivable object needed to furnish a home and dress a family.

A dress for a quarter? That's what Nancy Dibbs paid for this Liz Claiborne special.

THINGS YOUR MOTHER TOLD YOU, BUT YOU FORGOT

• Presentation is everything! Even meatloaf looks wonderful with a little parsley around it.

• Keep yourself up.

• When you look good, you do good.

• No one ever needed to apologize for looking good.

• Don't bring attention to your faults. The next time that person sees you that's all he or she will look at.'

• For instant beauty: Smile, stand up straight, suck in your tummy or hang around with homely people!

• Cheap', all around exercise: walking.

• Don't be ashamed to weave secondhand clothing, only be ashamed if you've stolen it.

• Remember clothes are not an investment, they are disposable so don't spend too much on them. Last years "WOWZA" outfit is only so-so this year.

• Don't buy clothes too small, we rarely ever get smaller.

• High heels make you appear thinner.

• Hide flaws, veins, and scars with gray pantyhose.

• Taupe shoes and hose will go with any outfit.

• Polish off any outfit with off-white or off-black pantyhose.

• Cream shoes and hose can be worn all summer.

• Put pantyhose in a mesh bag and launder in the washing machine.

• Support pantyhose lasts much longer and you won't jiggle.

• Remove scuff marks on light colored shoes with an eraser.

• White-out scuff marks on white shoes.

• Colored markers work well to cover scuff marks on colored shoes.

• You can dye fabric shoes with food coloring diluted with water.

• Wash your face in cold water.

• Fuchsia lipstick makes your teeth look whiter.

• Line your lips, the lipstick will stay put and your lips will look fuller. A small line upward in the corners of your mouth makes you look happy. As we age our mouths turn downward.

• Peroxide and baking soda will bleach the teeth.

• Hand wash items in shampoo, it's the best grease remover and it smells nice.

• Cortisone cream on ears and earring backs will comfort sensitive ears.

• Oil of Olay will take away the pain of a curling iron burn. Apply twice.

• Baby powder on oily hair will let you go an extra day between shampoos. It smells nice too.

• Deodorant stones, sold in drug stores, are mineral salts, non-allergenic, won't stain clothing and lasts about a year.

' A cheap, light scarf around the head will preserve your hairdo and keep makeup intact when changing clothes. Tuck one into your purse before clothes shopping.

• Only take short warm baths, hot water is too drying. Using a sponge to get more suds is also less drying.

• You can dye white underwear to a beige color in brewed tea.

• You can dye items to a bright yellow-god in boiled onion skins.

• Beige underwear is invisible under white clothing.

• Need a camisole? Cut off a full slip at hip level and hem.

• Slip riding up? Turn it inside out.

• Many dry clean only items can be washed in cold water. Check fabric content.

• Ignore sizes on secondhand items. There is a great disparity in size ranges. Dibbs wears items marked 6 to 16.

• Wearing clothes too small will make you look fat.

• Dilute shampoo one half with water (beauty shops do). Hair will be much shinier. Shampoo is too detergent and strips the oils.

• Secondhand items can be freshened and fold marks removed in the dryer.

• Candles stored in the freezer will burn much slower.

• Uptight? Eat celery, it relaxes you.

• Cold tea bags refresh the eyes. After morning tea, put them in the freezer, later, when you take a nap, put the bags on your bags.

• Insomia? Maybe you're too tired. A 20 minute nap in the afternoon helps.

• Sleeping on a small silky pillow will preserve your hairdo. It's better for your face too.

• Don't dry underwear in the dryer, it's bad for the elastic.

• Launder black items, jeans, etc;, inside out. They will wear better and fade less.

• You get the most mileage from neutrals, tans, creams, black, white, and navy.

• Every woman should own a plain black dress. It goes anywhere. Jackets, collars, scarfs, belts, sequined jackets, vests, and necklaces can completely change the look. The best investment is a middleweight fabric with elbow length sleeves.

Tulip Tour Focuses On Food, Flowers, Decor

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Want ideas for installing a whirlpool bath or a sunroom? Would you like the recipe for that divine dessert served by a local restaurant? Or, maybe you are dying to know what that house on the corner lot looks like inside.

Whatever the reason, a sell-out crowd of more than 600 (with hundreds turned away) showed up at the seven homes open for inspection on Monday for the annual Kitchen Kapers Tulip Tour in Ephrata.

At each stop, a chef from a local restaurant prepares food samples of one of their restaurant specialties that is served to each guest. Recipes for the specialties are available.

At each home, a local greenhouse or a flower shop have decorated the inside and sometimes the outside with floral displays. The tour is an opportunity to admire the flower beds and landscaping surrounding the participating homes.

The Ephrata Women's Club uses the tour as a fund raiser for local charities. The success of this annual tour depends not only upon hospitable homeowners but also upon local restaurants and floral designers who offer their services free.

SHOO FLY PIE

1 cup dark corn syrup
2 cups water
1 cup brown sugar
¼ cup baking soda
Crumb topping:
1 cup brown sugar
2½ cups flour
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
⅓ cup shortening
1 teaspoon cinnamon
Dash salt
2 unbaked pie shells

Bring all ingredients for wet bottom to a boil. Combine all ingredients for topping in a large bowl and work into crumbs using a pastry blender, 2 knives or food processor. Pour 1½ cups of wet bottom syrup into each pie shell, top with crumb mixture until level with edge of shell. Bake in preheated 360 degree oven for 1½ hours. Best when served warm with ice cream or whipped cream.

Plain & Fancy

Stop machine when dough ball is formed. Makes two 9-inch pie shells. To prepare without processor, use pastry blender or 2 forks to work in all ingredients except water into coarse crumbs. Add water by tablespoons until dough is formed. Do not overwork.

You Ask ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? You Answer

In response to readers' questions, this column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for the answers. In the past many readers sent non-cooking requests to Cook's Question Corner, a column located in B 8.

"You Ask — You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. The concept is the same: When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed as soon as possible in the paper.

Questions and answers for this column should be addressed to You Ask — You Answer, Lou Ann Good, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522.

QUESTION — A. Nolt of New Holland would like to know the complete poem that was recited in the 1920s when her father-in-law went to school. The poem contains these lines: The carpenter's house is falling down. The preacher's kids are the worse in town....

QUESTION — Romaine B. Ansell, Summerdale, would like to know who manufactured the Webalco electric skillet.

QUESTION — Robin O'Brien, Reading, would like to know some economical cleaning solutions to be used on everything from cleaning wooden floors to fiberglass tubs.

ANSWER — Nancy Kring, Johnstown, wanted to know where you can purchase books and cassettes on the Pennsylvania Dutch language. Also, where can Pa. Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

The other evening I decided to forget responsibilities and go fishing. One reason was because my husband was away for two days in order to fish for trout at his brother's cabin.

Walking down through our meadow to the Conestoga River, I found the way was blocked as our cottagers have put fences and gates with locks around their buildings. So, I had to climb down a small ravine and then climb over a fence. Immediately, I caught a small sunfish which I threw back. Then my line got caught and I pulled and pulled and finally tore the whole thing loose. Next job was replacing the sinker and hooks.

Now I decided to find a new spot as I hate to replace everything when it snags. So, I climbed a hill and pulled myself "under" a high livestock fence rather than take a chance on catching my clothes on the wire. There was a dock nearby and I fished there. A few more small fish were returned to the river and then a big fish took my worm, but just as I lifted him from the water, he tore himself loose and got away.

The wild flowers were very beautiful. I enjoyed the large grouping of Virginia Bluebells with their blue and pink blossoms as they made a spectacular show. The delicate Dutchman's Breeches with their white, pantaloon-shaped flowers were in full bloom too. And, a large patch of a dandelion-type flower was also blooming near the bank of the river.

In a recent article I mentioned white water rafting and named the wrong river. We rafted on the Lehigh River in the Pocono Mountains in the spring when the water was eight feet above normal level and flowing very rapidly.

Peach Blossoms Ablaze In Gloucester County

CLEMENTON, NJ — Spring is here as blazing pink blossoms abound throughout Gloucester County. "Peaches, the largest individual cash crop in the state are centered in Gloucester County with 7,000 acres," said Jerry Frecon, agricultural agent with Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Gloucester County. Mr. Frecon said acreage has declined in recent years due to a depressed agricultural economy and poor prices for peaches but growers are more optimistic about 1994. "We have a beautiful crop of peach flowers now that we hope will mature into a crop of large attractive flavorful peaches," said Frecon. "Unfortunately many things can happen between now and harvest that can reduce the crop like low temperatures during bloom," he stated.

Low temperatures to minus 25 degrees fahrenheit hurt many peach orchards in Pennsylvania, Maryland, and throughout the upper Midwestern states but southern New Jersey peach growers were lucky because the trees were well asleep, and temperatures as low as minus 11 degrees fahrenheit did only slight thinning of the blossoms said Frecon.

"Occasionally a grower's disaster is a way of helping another grower get a better price," emphasized Frecon. "The peach market is very sensitive to the law of supply and demand."

One Gloucester County grower very active in peach marketing is Dan Haynicz of Monroeville in Elk Township, Gloucester County. Haynicz serves as chair of the New Jersey Peach Promotion Council. "Our council is responsible for developing a cooperative promotional program for the New Jersey peach crop," said Haynicz. "I have nearly a full crop of peach flowers and most of the growers I have talked to in the southern part of the state where 98% of the peach acreage is expect a nice crop," he stated.

"Our peach bloom is just about on schedule and if we don't have a frost we will be in good shape," said Haynicz.

New Tool Deals With Crop Losses

LEXINGTON, Ky — Farmers in 27 states, including Pennsylvania, have a new tool to use in managing the risk of catastrophic crop losses.

The new program, called the group risk plan, (GRP) allows many farmers to ensure their crop against catastrophic losses more cheaply than with conventional multiple peril crop insurance, according to Jerry Skees, an agricultural economist with the University of Kentucky College of Agricutlure.

Skees is conducting research on the new program with U.S. Department of Agriculture officials.

"The new program will allow farmers to enroll their acreage into the program at a percent of the expected 1994 county average yield for that commodity. If the county average yield drops below that threshold, the farmer receives a payment for his losses," Skees said.

According to Skees, the new program provides many farmers protection that exceeds that provided by the traditional federal multiple peril crop insurance program.

In addition, he said, the federal contribution to the cost of the program will be considerably less than with the multiple peril crop insurance program because the GRP program should be less expensive to administer and there should be fewer excess losses. Lower costs, he said, should appeal to taxpayers.

Skees said the program is very straightforward. "If an insured farmer is in the county where the current county average yield drops below the forecasted average, the farmer receives payment, regardless of his own loss.

"Some people are saying that is like insuring your house and collecting only if the whole neighborhood burns down. That kind of thinking is not correct. The difference is that crop losses due to catastrophe are generally related. If drought diminishes your crop, it likely also drops yields throughout the county," Skees said.

Under the GRP plan, an insured farmer receives payment when the county yield drops below a trigger yield he chooses. The trigger yield is established as the coverage level of 90, 85, 80, 75, 70, or 65 percent of the expected county average yield based on the county's forecasted 1994 yield, he said.

Payment is based on the level of protection selected when he enrolls his acreage, Skees said, and can be up to 150 percent of the equivalent value of the expected county yield.

If the expected average county yield for soybeans, for example, is 30 bushels per acre and a farmer chooses a coverage of 90 percent, the trigger yield is 27 bushels. Any time the county yield falls below 27 bushels, regardless of the farmer's yield, he receives a payment Skees said.

If the farmer purchased, for example, $200 per acre worth of protection for those soybeans and the actual county yield is only 20 bushels (a 26 percent shortfall from the trigger yield of 27 bushels), he receives $52 per acre in payment, which is 26 percent of his protection level of $200.

Farmers who expect their own yields to be greater than the average county yield, also can participate in the program. They can enroll their crops for a value at as much as 50 percent above the county average yields, Skees said.

Skees added that GRP will work best for farmers who have experienced crop shortfalls in the same years that county yields were short.

"It is possible for a farmer to have a loss and not get paid under GRP. However, we must recognize that two-thirds of our farmers do not purchase the traditional crop insurance. GRP should help most of those farmers," Skees said.

Skees said that a new provision of the traditional federal multiple peril crop insurnace program, which also will be available, requires farmers to provide four years of yield data to participate if they are to ensure their crop at full coverage. Farmers who don't have such data available will be able to participate in the GRP program without penalty.

Farmers Union Members Attend National Convention

FARGO, N.D. — Agricultural trade issues, preparations for the 1995 farm bill, and health care dominated the discussions at the 92nd anniversary National Farmers Union convention held here recently.

Among the nearly 1,500 attending the convention were Robert Junk, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union (PFU); Paul Yates; Scott McNamara; and Jerry Seyler, state vice president, as delegates for PFU. Representing the PFU youth group were Erin Snyder, Brenda Seyler, and Byron Seyler.

Other members who attended were Irk McConnell, president of Washington County; Jack Philson, president of Mercer County; Naomi Spahr, president of Lancaster County; and state treasurer of PFU, Jack Rynd. Also attneding were Greg Powell, Gene Martz, Ruth McNamara, and Forney Longenecker.

The farm convention called for immediate action to end the increasing volume of grain coming into the United States from Canada. The Farmers Union also said it will oppose the recently completed Uruguay Round of trade negotiations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The farm organization also established its proposals for consideration in the development of the 1995 farm bill. Increased commodity loan rates, the targeting of benefits to the production level of family farmers and ranchers, an improved Federal Crop Insurance program, and a reorganized U.S. Department of Agriculture were among the recommendations Farmers Union will be bringing to Congress.

The convention heard from top USDA officials including Bob Nash, undersecretary for Small Communities and Rural Development; Michael Dunn, administrator of the Farmers Home Administration; and Grant Buntrock, administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

U.S. Senators Kent Conrad (ND) and Byron Dorgan (ND) addressed the convention. Both called for a change in agricultural trade policies to protect America's family farmers. U.S. Representatives Collin Peterson (Minn.) and Earl Pomeroy (ND) also outlined the need for improved farm and trade policies.

The convention also featured workshops on value-added agricultural enterprises, international farmer-to-farmer programs, and health care. Thomas Southerland, a former hostage held by Lebanese terrorists, shared his personal values and experiences in the closing session of the convention.

SOUND MANAGEMENT FOR HOUSE FLY CONTROL

Dr. Charles Pitts
Professor, Dept. of Entomology

The fly season is here and we must establish sound fly management programs.

Each poultry producer should be aware of the importance of controlling house flies in their facilities in order to have good sanitation in the egg houses and to be a good neighbor to his non-poultry producing neighbors. This relationship to the community is very important to the poultry industry and must be taken seriously.

The spring thaw has finally come and we can get on with our farm chores. One of the big jobs that faces us is removing and spreading manure. Even though we have just completed a very hard winter, house fly maggots have been successful in surviving the winter.

As you haul and spread the manure, remember to spread the manure as thinly and evenly as possible and to deep plow as soon as possible after the spreading. This part of your fly control program is as important as any other part. This practice will certainly go a long way in establishing good neighbor relations.

The first thing the producer should do is to have some method of sampling the fly population so they will know if the fly population is increasing, decreasing, or holding steady. This will allow the producer to evaluate the efficacy of their fly control program.

Methods of monitoring populations of adult flies include fly grids, resting counts, sticky fly paper, baited jug-traps, and spot cards. The most useful in animal facilities are resting counts, sticky fly paper, baited jug-traps, and spot cards.

Resting counts are done by using predesignated areas such as walls, beams, or ceilings and fly counts are made in these areas each day. Several locations are used in each house. By doing these counts over time, you can monitor trends in the fly population.

Sticky fly papers are available commercially. The flies caught on the sticky paper gives a useful index of fly population. Also the flies caught on the paper can be positively identified. Several of these sticky papers should be placed in each house being evaluated. The fly papers should be left in place for two days and then removed and counts made. The number of papers used should be constant and put back in the same place each time. These papers work well but are messy to handle.

Baited jug-traps are a simple, practical fly monitoring device and can be left in place for up to one week to give a continuous sampling of flies. The same trap can be used for the purpose of fly control. The baited jug-trap consists of a one gallon plastic milk jug with four holes (three inches in diameter) cut around the circumference in the upper third of the jug. About one tablespoon of bait containing muscalure is placed in the bottom. Flies enter, feed on the bait, and die in the jug. The number and species of flies can be determined easily. After one week, the bait has reduced effectiveness so the flies and old bait should be dumped and fresh bait added.

At least six jug-traps should be used per deep pit house. The traps should be put in locations where flies congregate and the traps should be put in the same place each time counts are made. In poultry houses, 350 flies per week has been used as the threshold for chemical treatment. However, lower threshold may be desired when neighbors are close.

Spot cards are simple devices for measuring fly activity. These are 3 x 5 index cards which are fastened flush to prechosen locations in the facility. Flies resting on the spot cards leave light straw-colored regurgitation spots and dark fecal spots. The number of spots per card is easily counted after an exposure of three to seven days. The placement of cards is important and they must be placed where flies are observed to rest or fly specks are present. At least 10 cards should be used per facility and an index of 50 spots per card has been used as a threshold for chemical treatment.

These simple methods for monitoring fly populations will aid the producer in evaluating the total fly management program. Remember that good fly management starts with good manure management, which includes good ventilation and no leaky watering cups.

If you would like to discuss this information further, or if you are having problems with fly populations, please call me at (814) 863-7789.

Educators Take Part In Workshop

ALFRED, N.Y. — Dr. Richard A. Hoffman, professor in the Agriculture and Horticulture Department at Alfred State College, was among some 30 educators taking part in an Agricultural Biotechnology Standards trainer workshop in Chicago April 8-10.

Arranged by the National FFA Foundation, the project was a collaborative effort by education, industry, and labor.

The purpose, Hoffman said, was "to identify skills needed by a technician (with less than a baccalaureate degree) employed in an agricultural business, using the tools of biotechnology."

Presentations included a description of a model educational program for preparing biotechnicians, staged by Dr. Joy McMillan, director of the Biotechnology Laboratory Technician Program at Madison (Wis.) Area Technical College.

Workers' Compensation Safety Group Means Farmer Savings

Keystone Director Jim Garber receives certificate from Dr. Cathy Hamlett of Penn State upon completioln of Director Institute. Dick Poorbaugh of Penn State looks on.

Responding to the need of farmers to control these costs, Agri-Service Agencies, Inc. — Dairylea Cooperative's wholly owned insurance subsidiary — announces the formation of the Agri-Service Farm Safety Group in Pennsylvania.

"Dairylea has worked for several years to achieve workers' compensation reform in Pennsylvania," said Dairylea President Clyde Rutherford. "The continuous efforts of many businesses and agricultural organizations helped bring about changes in the system, which have allowed for the introduction of this safety group," he said.

The safety group, which is guaranteed to lower premiums, is the result of a joint endeavor between Agri-Service and the Pennsylvania State Workmen's Insurance Fund.

Within a safety group, individual policies are pooled together, thus enabling participants to realize significant savings. A year-end discount of at least 12.6 percent and as high as 14.4 percent is guaranteed through the group. In addition, through Agri-Service, convenient monthly payments can be automatically deducted from bank accounts or monthly milk checks.

Through the program, safety and loss control services that improve farm safety and reduce the human and financial costs of workers' compensation also are provided to program participants.

Current policyholders of the State Workmen's Insurance Fund can join the Agri-Service Farm Safety Group and begin earning year-end discounts by completing a simple authorization form that is available thorugh Agri-Service.

Garber Attends Director Institute

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — James M. Garber, a director of Keystone Farm Credit attended the 10th Pennsylvania Director Institute held at the Nittany Lion Inn.

Garber is vice president of Garber Farms, Inc. of Mount Joy and a partner in James Garber & Sons.

The objective of the Institute is to provide directors and managers with opportunities for learning about and strengthening their leadership and business skills within the cooperative. A highlight of this year's Institute was a presentation by Martha Tilyard from Greensboro, N.C. who discussed personality types and their effect on decision making.

The Institute was conducted by the Penn State Cooperative Business Education and Research Progam in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Corn Growers Help To Secure Ethanol's Future

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Corn growers, though busy with field work, are showing support for ethanol and a potential 500 million bushel market for the crop they are planting.

"Since corn farmers all across the country are now either in the field or getting ready to go, we thought it would be ideal to let the President know just how important this ethanol market is by sending seed tags from the farm with a handwritten note," said Pete Wenstrand, an Essex, Iowa corn farmer and president of the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA).

By June, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is expected to issue a final rule on the Renewable Oxygenate Requirement (ROR) of the Clean Air Act's Reformulated Gasoline (RFG) program. The RFG program requires major urban areas to reduce carbon monoxide levels to acceptable tolerances. Under ROR, the Clinton Administration is proposing that 30 percent of the oxygenates required in reformulated gasoline come from renewable fuels such as ethanol. NCGA estimates ROR may generate additional demand for ethanol requiring as much as 500 million bushels of corn.

"This is a unique opportunity to expand consumer demand for ethanol," said Pete Wenstrand. "It's critical that corn growers fully demonstrate their support for the ROR initiative. Even at this late date, 'big oil' and petroleum interests would love to derail ethanol. Already attempts are being made to 'water down' or eliminate the ROR. Corn growers aren't going to let this happen. Ethanol, a renewable fuel with proven environmental benefits, has earned the right to compete fairly in the marketplace."

NCGA, along with 24 state-affiliated corn grower associations and numerous other farm organizations, is sponsoring a seed tag drive. From Minnesota to Mississippi, corn growers plan to flood the White House with corn seed tags bearing words of support for ethanol. Many of the messages point out that each bag of seed corn represents more than 750 gallons of ethanol.

Farmers are encouraged to send notes that say something like, "Mr. President, the seed from this bag will produce 750 gallons of renewable ethanol. We support your proposal, don't let us down." Or, "Mr. President, each tag represents about 300 bushels of corn. Renewable ethanol provides a market for that corn, please don't let us down."

Corn growers are encouraging agribusinesses to support the seed tag drive. In Iowa, elevators are displaying posters urging farmers to participate. Also, seed companies are alerting their customers to the pressing need to support ethanol. "The Clinton Administration needs to know farmers are monitoring progress on the ROR initiative even during the busy planting season," said Wenstrand.

Also, Congress is learning the "good word" about ethanol. On April 18, NCGA, the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Farmer's Union are co-sponsoring an ad in Washington, DC's "Roll Call" newspaper. The ad reminds legislators that 'Renewable,' (the 'good word' in the Renewable Oxygenate Requirement), provides substantial benefits including economic security, support for American agriculture, cost effectiveness and safety, more American jobs and cleaner air. In addition to the seed tags and the ad, NCGA leaders are sending President Bill Clinton a personal letter expressing appreciation for his longstanding support for ethanol and emphasizing the crucial need for a strong ROR initiative.

Bottle Bill Backer Urges Use Of Deposits

ALBANY, N.Y. — One of the key players in the fight for the original bottle bill is saying that the unreclaimed bottle deposits should be used for solid waste management and water quality initiatives.

The 23,000-member New York Farm Bureau believes that the unreclaimed 5-cent bottle deposits — estimated to be more than $70 million a year — should be used to fund county recycling programs, landfill closures, and the state's non-point source pollution control program.

"Reducing the waste stream through local recycling efforts and funding non-point source pollution programs are important environmental priorities that should be addressed," said NYFB President Charles Wille. "Farmers are this country's original environmentalists and believe strongly in protecting the environment for future generations. That is why Farm Bureau has been so pro-active in areas like recycling, water quality and reducing ag chemical usage through integrated pest management."

According to Wille, "The unreclaimed 5 cent per bottle deposit monies have been lost since the Bottle Bill was signed into law over a decade ago. It would not only be advantageous but appropriate that these dollars be used to help fund solid waste management and water quality efforts through the newly-created Environmental Protection Fund.

"Farm Bureau has long fought for a pay-as-you-go approach for addressing the state's most pressing environmental concerns like solid waste management and water quality," said Wille. "We led the fight against the 1990 Environmental Bond because it would have sent the state deeper in debt."

Wille went on to say that Farm Bureau is pleased that Governor Cuomo is fighting to get the unreclaimed bottle deposit refunds for the protection of our environment.

First-Time Farmer Program To Begin In Pa.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff and federal Farmers Home Administration State Director Cheryl Cook have reached an agreement that will start a First-Time Farmer Program in Pennsylvania.

"We're working to get this program up and running," Wolff said. "First-Time Farmer loans will create opportunities for people who want to participate in Pennsylvania's number one industry."

The First-Time Farmer Program provides low-cost financing to assist commonwealth farmers in farming careers. Loans are provided by participating lending institutions and are financed by the sale of federally tax-exempt bonds. Beginning farmers programs typically carry interest rates of two to four percentage points below conventional rates.

The First-Time Farmer loans may be used for purchasing farmland, improving land, purchasing or constructing farm buildings, purchasing depreciable agriculture machinery and equipment and also livestock.

Qualified borrowers may seek up to $250,000 for purchasing land, farm buildings, and financing land improvements and up to $125,000 of the $250,000 may be used for equipment and livestock purchases.

To be eligible for a First-Time Farmer loan, an applicant must never have held a direct or indirect ownership interest in substantial farmland, have a net worth of less than $200,000, have access to adequate working capital, be educated or experienced in the type of farming operation for which the loan is sought, not be buying from a closely related person, and not be refinancing an existing debt.

For additional information on the Pennsylvania First-Time Farmer Program, contact the Department's Bureau of Agricultural Development at (717) 783-8460.

TOP 10 REASONS

TANCO BALE WRAPPER

TANCO	COMPETITION
1 ■ Five (5) points of support on turntable: Four heavy duty rollers add stability and support to the perimeter of the turntable in addition to the main central shaft. This allows Tanco wrappers to safely wrap the heaviest silage bales on rough or uneven ground.	Competition uses one central shaft to support the entire turntable mechanism
2 ■ Single solid belt on turntable: The single belt enables Tanco wrappers to effectively wrap misshapen or soggy bales providing a positive surface for bale rotation.	Competition uses either no belts between rollers, or multiple belts which can allow bales to sag and slip
3 ■ Adjustable extendable axle: On trailed models the extendable axle provides a wide, stable wheel base when loading bales. Eliminates the need for counter weights.	Competition must add counterweights or tandem axles as options to effectively handle silage bales.

TANCO	COMPETITION
4 ■ Top rollers on turntable: Extra rollers provide security to keep bales in place when wrapping at high RPM's (25) or on uneven terrain.	Competition - None.
5 ■ Unloading ramp on trailed models: The ramp allows bales to be unloaded gently. When a wrapped bale falls hard it can "burp." Once it "burps" the bale does not reseal. The ramp gives a smooth transition between the ground and turntable.	Competition - optional drop mats or ramps available
6 ■ Optional "High Rise" axle kit for soft ground conditions.	Compare!
7 ■ Models available to fit every individual need, including machines to wrap big square bales. Tanco was first to build a large square bale wrapper, and continues to produce advancements in bale wrapping technology.	Limited product lines
8 ■ Positive bale positioning: While being wrapped, bales are rotated the exact distance required to obtain optimum coverage.	Competition uses continuous hydraulic advance. Bales can slip or over-rotate giving an uneven wrap
9 ■ Durability: Tanco's subframe is one of the heaviest of any machines available in North America. The low profile design keeps silage bales closer to the ground with a low center of gravity for stability. Tanco's features are the result of years of experience and input from hundreds of individual, and commercial users.	Competition - Compare!
10 ■ Price: From a basic 3 point Model AW200, to the trailed Model AW400 with automatic cut & start, bale and batch counter, and tractor seat controls, Tanco prices are very competitive. Pay less for more features and durability than any other bale wrapper on the market.	Competition - Compare!

Boom Kit Converts Floaters For Herbicide Application

CARROLL, Iowa — Monsanto has developed a spray boom kit that allows custom applicators to adapt large liquid fertilizer floaters for application of Roundup® herbicide. The Roundup® Boom II Kit offers several advantages to applicators. Utilizing large floater tank capacities for herbicide application means less downtime is spent mixing and loading.

More acres can be sprayed per load with fewer interruptions.

"Having floaters set up for herbicide application will enable applicators to cover a lot of acres in a short amount of time," said Walter Armstrong, Monsanto marketing specialist in Carroll, Iowa.

Applying Roundup with a floater also provides a smoother ride for applicators on rough fields. "Bumpy field conditions can increase applicator fatigue and affect concentration and application accuracy," Armstrong said. "Retailers will also get improved floater utilization by widening application options to include burndown herbicides, as well as fertilizer and residual herbicides."

The Roundup Boom II Kit includes everything you need to completely modify a floater for herbicide spraying. Components included in the kit are stainless steel tubing, wet boom nozzle bodies with diaphragm check valves (caps & nozzles included), spray tips, strainers, adjustable midsection and spray boom mount, and flood nozzle plugs.

Food Groups Oppose Ag Cuts To Finance GATT

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A coalition of 21 food and agricultural interests said their support for legislation implementing a proposed international trade agreement will not fall unfairly on U.S. agriculture.

In a letter to President Clinton, the group said some estimates show that by reducing tariffs on imports, the new General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) could reduce U.S. government revenues by $14-$18 billion. Such estimates, the group noted, are highly subjective and fail to consider the potential for increased revenues due to expanding trade and increased economic activity, which help create jobs and an expanded tax base.

"It is our understanding the administration has under consideration various proposals, including requiring significant reductions in current farm and related programs, to help offset a major proportion of such revenue losses," the letter said. "This is despite the fact that tariff revenue losses from agricultural imports account for only about five percent or less of the estimated total."

The group indicated that the Administration has assured farm organizations that the new GATT agreement would not require any further reduction in domestic income and price-support programs. The coalition is concerned that payment for the GATT agreement will fall disproportionately on the agricultural sector, which already has seen significant spending cuts in recent years.

Under the negotiated GATT agreement, tariffs in signatory countries would be reduced on a wide range of products. But while the agreement requires countries to reduce their use of export subsidies, it allows them to maintain — or even increase — their support for certain non-trade-distorting ("green box") programs. In its letter, the coalition urged President Clinton to shift current funding from reduced or disallowed programs to the green box programs.

Agricultural support programs considered in the green box catgegory include market development and promotion, export credit, food aid, and other related programs. The budget currently under consideration would significantly reduce many of these programs, even though they are permitted by GATT.

"Unless these concerns are addressed, it is hard to envision how U.S. agriculture stands to gain as a result of the new GATT agreement," the letter said.

The GATT agreement was negotiated during a seven-year period. Before it can take effect, most signatory countries must bring their own domestic laws into compliance with the GATT agreement. The U.S. Congress may take up this implementing legislation later this year.

The letter to President Clinton stated that the coalition would find it very difficult to support any funding proposal which recommends that U.S. agriculture pay a disproportionate share of the cost of GATT.

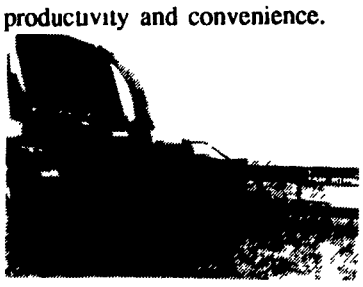
Case Harvester Has Self-Contained Hydraulic System

RACINE, Wis. — J I Case has begun full production of the Case International 8750, a new Category III forage harvester featuring several innovations that increase productivity and convenience.



The self-contained hydraulic system on the Case International 8750 forage harvester supplies power to the feedrolls, making it possible to provide uniform, clean cuts through an infinitely variable range of lengths.

"The most important new feature is the self-contained hydraulic system," said Dave Hess, Case product manager-hay and forage.

The hydraulic system supplies power to drive the feedrolls and attachments. The tongue of the machine serves as the hydraulic reservoir for the self-contained system, and the system pump is belt-driven from the tractor PTO.

"Because of this setup, theoretical cut length can be infinitely adjusted between 3/16 and 5/8 of an inch," said Hess. "All a farmer needs to do is move an indicator to the desired position. This varies the pump output flow and changes the speed of the feedroll drive motor — faster for long cuts, slower for shorter cuts. There are no sprockets to change. No machine with mechanical drive is as easy to adjust."

Farmers from the factory direct Claas Harvest Center regions of Indiana and Ohio as well as the dealer represented areas of New York, Pennsylvania and North America recently toured Germany and the Netherlands on a Claas of America sponsored, all-expense paid trip. 6-Rotor Model 169 Teds 22 Feet Wide

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The new 6-rotor New Holland Model 169 tedder fluffs and spreads large acreage hay crops in minimal time.

Actual working width of the Model 169 is 22 feet 8 inches, according to Ford New Holland Product Manager Bob Hatz.

"In practice, this lets hay growers cover three unraked swaths per pass, depending on windrow shield setting," Hatz said. "The relatively high ground speed and wide working width of the Model 169 give hay growers better crop quality control."

For legumes, the wide-pass fast working rate lets operators ted much larger acreages before leaves are dry and shatter-prone. For heavily fertilized, high-yield grass crops, the "169" lets growers keep the crop above the stubble to improve air flow and further shorten curing time.

The new 6-rotor New Holland Model 169 tedder has a 22 feet 8 inches working width to lift, fluff, and spread three unraked swaths per pass. The outside pair of rotors on both sides swing back for narrow transport width.

Kochel Honored As Specialist

SOMERSET, N.J. — Karcher, the world's leading manufacturer of high-pressure cleaning equipment, is pleased to announce that Kochel Equipment Company of Elverson, Pa., was recently honored as the number one Karcher Specialist for 1993 at Karcher's National Specialist meeting on Amelia Island, Florida. Kochel Equipment has earned this honor three out of the last four years.

Kochel Equipment was also the recipient of Karcher's Outstanding Service Award for continually providing exceptional service to Karcher customers. Doug and Bonnie Kochel accepted this award on behalf of Kochel Equipment's service manager, Leroy Jones, and the entire Kochel Equipment Service department.

Forage Blower Has High Capacity

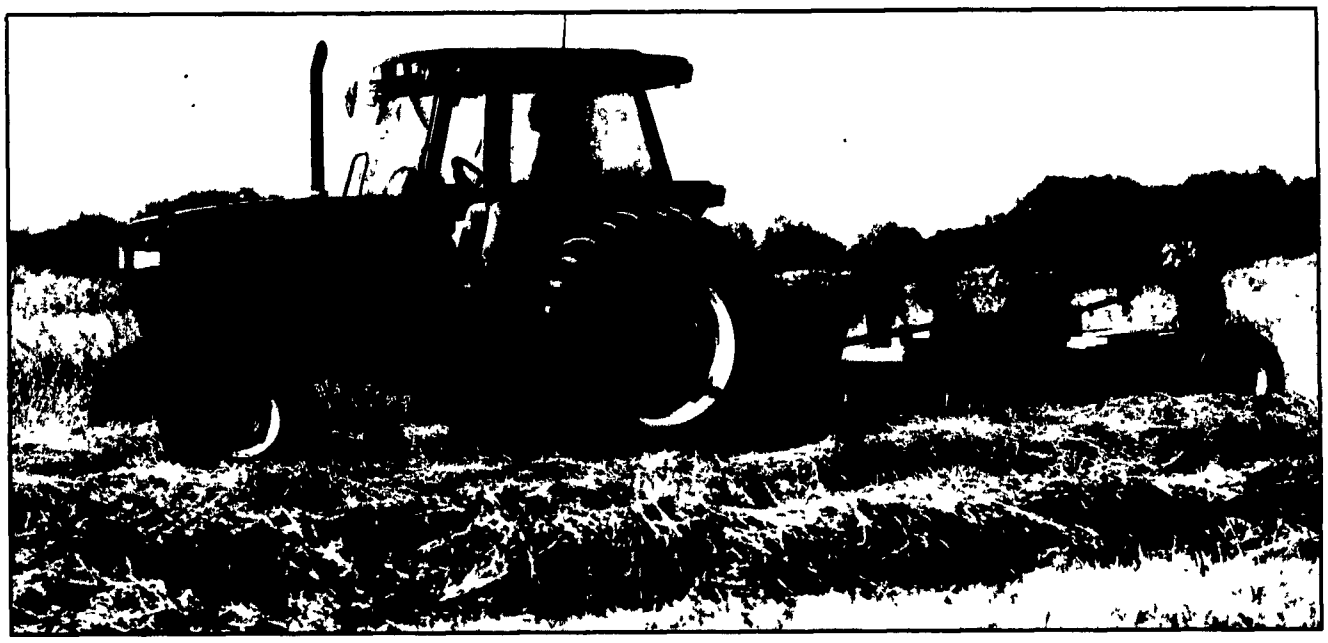
NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Fill rates of 100 tons of haylage or 180 tons of corn silage in units 100 feet high and more are achieved by the new Ford New Holland Model 60 forage blower.

According to the company, the 540 PTO blower uses a positive feed auger to lift material into the high-capacity fan at a 30-degree angle. The blower fan diameter is five feet and blower paddles are mounted on a backing plate so material doesn't rub on the blower housing. This helps reduce friction and maximize blowing efficiency, the company said.

The blower is designed to keep up with the harvesting speed of today's high-capacity forage harvesters. A low-height large size hopper also makes it easier to position unloading wagons to simplify and reduce unloading turn-around time at the silo.

Best Values in New Equipment

We hear you.



We know that making hay can be one of the hardest, hottest, dustiest jobs a farmer has to face. And a big gamble, too, when bad weather is on the horizon.

So when you asked for a tractor with the power and versatility to handle every haying operation from cutting and conditioning to baling and transporting, we heard you.

And when you told us you needed the kind of reliability and durability that'll never leave another windrow stranded in a wet field, we heard you.

And we responded with even more improvements to the industry's most advanced mid-range tractors, the Case International MAXXUM® 5200 Series.

That's why you'll now find a handy "neutral" position built into the standard full-power MAXXUM shuttle shift, allowing you to put the tractor in neutral without using the foot clutch—a real convenience when tying off round bales.

The MAXXUM cab is now more monitor-friendly than ever, with easy rear-window cable access and two new mounting points in the cab—a definite advantage when working with productive, monitored haying equipment.

And as always, every MAXXUM is built big-tractor heavy, with 2-1/2 in. thick cast frame rails, 7700 lbs. of rear-hitch capacity, and an expansive cab with 44 sq. ft. of glass—an indispensable benefit when keeping an eye on the windrow or working with high-productivity tools like the Case International 8312 Disc Mower Conditioner.

What size MAXXUM is right for you? With four models ranging from 80 to 112 PTO hp, you'll have a lot to discuss with your Case IH dealer. And remember to ask about Total Product Support, our commitment to the service and parts that turn a sale into a true partnership.

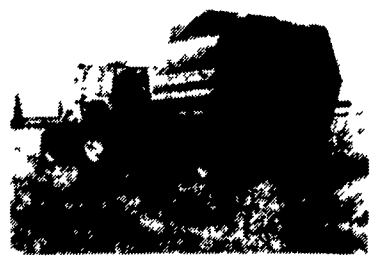
Bale It Wet Or Dry

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Vicon/Greenland has introduced RV 116 and RV 126 Variable Chamber Round Balers with the versatility to bale silage, hay, and straw.

Both models produce a dense, uniform 4-foot wide package. Bale diameters can be tailored from 2 feet to 4 feet 3 inches on the RV 116 and from 2 feet to 6 feet on the RV 126 to suit individual crops and conditions.

A twin belt system and "open throat" starting chamber combine for instant, trouble-free bale core formation. Even thin, short material starts to roll immediately on contact with two independent sets of belts running in opposite directions. Density can be controlled from the beginning (by springs), to the end (hydraulically), of the bale-making process, eliminating hard cores in the bale center.



Vicon/Greenland has introduced RV 116 and RV 126 Variable Chamber Round Balers with the versatility to bale silage, hay, and straw.

Hydraulically tensioned belts maintain constant pressure as the bale forms. The result is a firm, consistently dense package that retains its shape for safe storage and handling. Grasses ensile better with less air. Bales unroll completely for feeding. Customizing bale density to fit virtually any crop — from high moisture hay to straw — is a simple turn of a knob. A bale shape indicator and warning lights make it even easier to produce a perfect bale every time.

For more information, contact Cummings & Bricker Inc., 100 Stover Drive, Carlisle, PA 17013, (717) 249-6720.

WARNING!

You can't see it--and you can't stop it. Storage losses in forage can steal your valuable crop--how much is lost depends upon how you store your feed:

- Tower Silos have Up to 8% loss
- Bunkers have Up to 45% loss*

If the average difference in feed lost between tower silos and bunkers is 30%, then storage of 1000 tons will mean 300 tons MORE lost in a bunker. If silage is valued at $30 per ton, the additional losses from bunker storage would be $9000 a year.

For information on losses for all types of crop storage methods, contact the Crop Storage Institute for your free copy of " Methods of Crop Storage" and "Know the Facts."

"IT IS TIME TO ONCE AGAIN GET SERIOUS ABOUT STORING YOUR VALUABLE FEEDS!!!"

The recent "innovations" and temporary methods of storing your grains and forages are just not protecting your feeds like they should, nor are they really efficient.

Research and practical experience has shown that "the tower silo has never been equalled in its ability to protect your forage quality." And remember..." on most dairy farms, forage quality is the single most important factor affecting profit."

Contact us soon to be sure you get on our schedule to have your poured concrete tower silo constructed in time!

No used silos!
No pre-owned silos!

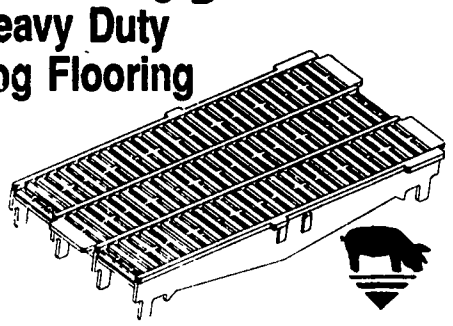
REPLACING HOG FLOORING CONSIDERING NEW CONSTRUCTION?
☑ CHECK OUT Polygrate™
Heavy Duty Hog Flooring



Time Tested and Proven
This style of POLYGRATE was first introduced in 1981. Over the years Faroex has continued to refine this product. POLYGRATE is one of only a few "World Class" floors that has stood this test of time.

Outstanding Traction
POLYGRATE'S unique "high-low" finger design provides outstanding traction for pigs of all sizes, while enhancing safety and comfort.

- POLYGRATE'S rounded corners minimize injuries. The edges are bevelled providing a smoother, safer surface that promotes comfort, too.

What Does This All Add Up To?

- More piglets survive until weaning
- Less splay/spraddle leg problems
- Heavier piglets at weaning
- Better conditioned sows at weaning

Attention Fishermen:

Wouldn't it be nice to catch fish nearly every time you go fishing? Susquehanna Aquacultures, Inc. can help turn your fishing into catching by stocking your favorite fishing hole with one of the best fighting and eating game fish - Hybrid Striped Bass. Susquehanna raises hybrid stripers at its fish farm on Brunner Island, near York Haven, Pa., and specializes in stocking catchable size stripers, available from 12" on up. Why wait all Summer until fingerlings grow up before you can catch them? Stock big fish now, and catch trophy size fish in the Fall!

Susquehanna Aquacultures, Inc. is also a licensed dealer or triploid grass carp (white amur), a fish that eats aquatic plants. If you have a weed problem in your pond, these fish could be your answer. Special regulations effect all grass carp stockings, so be sure you have the right approvals from the Pa. Fish and Boat Commission before purchasing any grass carp.

To set a date for changing your fishing into catching call us at 717-266-4577, or fax to 266-0611, or write to Susquehanna Aquacultures, Inc., P.O. Box 306, York Haven, Pa. 17370.

TURBOCHARGER SYSTEM

Ford 7.3L/6.9L Diesel Pickup & Navistar S Series Trucks

Hypermax ENGINEERING, INC.

The HYPERMAX PULSE TURBOCHARGER SYSTEM utilizes the high pressure exhaust pulses to achieve faster "off idle" engine acceleration and vastly improves throttle response. This response feature is accomplished without the use of a wastegate, which detracts from performance anywhere but at low engine speeds, due to its inherent high exhaust back pressure.

Field Borders: A Good Neighbor Policy

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — This spring, concern and pressure from neighbors bordering farm fields have run almost as high as water and mud levels.

As commercial and residential development continue to move closer to cropland, it becomes increasingly important to sustain good neighbor relations.

This can be difficult during parucularly wet seasons, as runoff from farm fields makes its way onto neighboring properties. A simple and effective way to reduce runoff problems is for farmers to maintain field borders on farm ground adjacent to developed areas.

Field borders are also known as filter strips or buffer strips. These terms all refer to a strip of vegetation established at the edge of a field.

Their main purpose is to control erosion and remove nutrients, sediment, and pollutants from runoff by filtration, infiltration, absorption, and adsorption. As water is slowed down through these vegetated areas, evaporation is enhanced, reducing the amount of water which passes through, and pollution is further deterred by organic decomposition and volatilization.

Besides serving as nutrient, sediment and chemical filters, field borders serve many functions. They can help to stabilize road banks and berms. In field entrances and areas with heavy machinery traffic, they can provide a stable place for travel lanes and turnarounds. These areas usually have compaction problems anyway, and are therefore less productive for cropping.

A well established filter strip along adjacent woodlands can reduce competition from woods and also provide food and cover for wildlife. And perhaps most importantly, these areas can maintain a comfortable distance between landowners. Neighbors are protected from spray and manure "drift," and they will often feel better at spreading time knowing there is a physical separation between their property and manured ground.

In planning to establish a field buffer, several factors should be considered. Slopes and soil should be evaluated, and vegetative species should be determined with these in mind. Time of year for establishment of vegetation, as well as the need for irrigation should also be considered. Visual aspects and fire hazards are important, too. Borders being used as turnrows or travel lanes should be established to bluegrass, fescues, perennial ryegrass or other vigorous grass sod. They will also need to be wide enough to accommodate farm equipment. Field borders should always be a minimum of 29 feet wide. Borders established to reduce woodland competition and improve wildlife habitat should be a maximum of 50 feet wide, and should not be established to grasses alone, except warm season grasses, and not tall fescue.

Field borders are relatively easy to establish and maintain, and the effort will be well worth the return. Peaceful relations between farmers and their neighbors benefit the whole community. Livestock Notes

Cost Savings In Energy Efficiency
Keith A. Bryan
Penn State Instructor
Dairy & Animal Science

As cost-of-production and gross income margins narrow in the swine industry, producers are faced with the multi-faceted challenge of reducing costs. One potential cost-saving item that may be overlooked is conservation of electricity.

Consider the total number of kilowatt hours of electricity used by a single light fixture during a 24-hour period. A light fixture with a 100-watt bulb uses 0.8 kilowatt hours of electricity in eight hours. At 7.5 cents per kilowatt hour, this single fixture would cost six cents per day to operate, or $21.90 per year. Using a 40-watt incandescent instead of a 100-watt bulb would result in a savings of $13.14 per fixture. In a 2,400-sow farrow-to-feeder operation with approximately 400 fixtures, this simple change amounts to an annual savings of $5,256.

What if we changed all fixtures from 100-watt incandescent fixtures to 40-watt fluorescent? The annual energy savings would remain about the same, but we would reap two additional benefits — increased life-span of the bulbs and increased light output. A 40-watt fluorescent light tube has an average lifespan of approximately 12,000 hours, whereas a 100-watt incandescent light has an average lifespan of approximately 750 hours. In a typical year, an incandescent fixture would require 3.9 bulbs at a cost of 12 cents per bulb, or 47 cents per fixture per year. But a fluorescent fixture would require only 0.25 bulbs at a cost of 99 cents per bulb, or 25 cents per fixture per year. The result? A net savings of 22 cents per fixture or approximately $88 annually in this example. Although this is minimal, using 40-watt fluorescent tubes versus 100-watt incandescent bulbs increases the amount of light from 1,750 to 3,200 lumens — an 82 percent improvement.

There are a few potential shortcomings to this proposed changeover. We have not accounted for the cost of replacing incandescent fixtures with fluorescent fixtures. Also, locating or designing water-tight/waterproof fluorescent fixtures may be cost-prohibitive. Alternatively, incandescent bulbs could be replaced with fluorescent bulbs that work in typical incandescent fixtures. You'll want to investigate the costs before making a significant change. Regardless of the type of bulbs and fixtures used currently, the potential exists to reap considerable sasvings by choosing alternative lighting.

Immunocastration Of Boars
Keith A. Bryan
Penn State Instructor
Dairy & Animal Science

Now more than ever, questions are cropping up about the necessity of typical management practices in swine units, due primarily to enhanced public awareness of animal welfare issues. Routine castration of boars destined for normal market channels is one such practice. The idea of alternative methods of castration is not new.

Scientists have investigated several methods to reduce the compounds which are responsible for the pungent odor of boar meat (primarily testicular steroids and skatole, a product of tryptophan degradation in the pig's digestive system).

One alternative method of castration is immunization against hormones that affect testicular steroid production. Up until now, the problem with this method has been that immunization schedules are ineffective in practical swine production situations.

Researchers from France and Canada recently evaluated the potential for immunocastration of boars by administering antiluteinizing hormone-releasing hormone (anti-LHRH) at 65 pounds and again at 195 pounds. This treatment was designed to provide minimal effect during most of the growing period in order to maintain advantages of boars in growth, feed efficiency and carcass composition; and to provide maximal effect just prior to slaughter at 230 pounds, when levels of testicular steroids and skatole begin to exceed those deemed acceptable by consumers.

As expected, boars grew faster, ate less, and converted feed to body weight gain more efficiently compared with barrows. However, there was no difference due to immunization status of boars for traits associated with growth performance. For all of the carcass traits studied, control boars were superior to barrows, but there was no difference between control and immunized boars for carcass traits.

Immunization of boars greatly reduced development of the reproductive organs and associated sex glands compared with control boars. Immunized boars had smaller testes, epididymides, seminal vesicles, and bulbourethral glands. Furthermore, boars immunized against LHRH had lower concentrations of testosterone in blood at 230 pounds and lower concentrations of androstenone in fat, but the concentration of skatole was unaffected by immunization status. None of the immunized boars, but nearly two-thirds of control boars, had androstenone levels that would be considered unacceptable for human detection and consumption.

The reported immunization schedule demonstrations the potential for more widespread use of boars for meat production by reducing levels of testicular steroids partly responsible for boar taint, without compromising advantages in growth performance and carcass composition of boars versus barrows.

Chain Saws: Powerful Tools, Potential Hazards

NEWARK, Del. — This winter's ice storms have damaged trees in almost every yard and field in southern Delaware.

And people will be using chain saws to remove broken branches and trees.

Every year, thousands of homeowners are injured in chain saw accidents. According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, there were more than 44,000 emergency room injuries involving chain saws last year.

"Because a chain saw is a high-speed wood-cutting tool, special precautions must be taken to reduce the risk of personal accidents," said Ron Jester, cooperative extension safety specialist at the University of Delaware. "Careless and improper use may cause serious and disabling injuries."

To understand the risk that chain saws pose, Jester suggests visualizing the operating chain as hundreds of razors passing a given point every second. Contact with the chain always results in serious injuries.

The specialist notes that a significant number of accidents occur with lightweight chain saws that are used primarily by homeowners. Making sure your saw is in good operating order and using proper personal protective gear are the first steps toward safety. Jester offers the following tips to help prevent needless accidents:

- Thoroughly read the owner's manual
- Know your chain saw and its limitations
- Maintain the saw according to the manufacturer's recommendations
- Use safety gear, including a hard hat, eye protection, sturdy work shoes, and safety chaps
- Always cut with a friend
- Use a safety tip or antikick device to reduce the chance of a kickback
- Always maintain a firm two-hand grip on the saw
- When felling trees, clear an escape path
- Use caution when refueling — gasoline is flammable
- Never force the saw and
- When possible use a hand tool such as a bow saw instead of a chain saw.

Seed Company Carries Latest In Alfalfa Genetics

MIFFLINBURG (Union Co.) — The Ohio Seed Company announces the addition of three new outstanding Alfalfa varieties to the eastern Pennsylvania market.

With the additions of PGI Brands More, Stetson II+ and Pasture Plus, the Ohio Seed Company offers a complete line of trifoliate and multi-foliate alfalfas equal or superior to any current competitive alfalfa products. And, the PGI Brands of More, Stetson II+ and Pasture Plus are proven for the Eastern Pennsylvania growing regions.

More is a multi leaf alfalfa with superior forage quality, pest resistance, and high persistence ratings. This high yielding multifoliate is perfectly adapted for the eastern alfalfa growing regions.

Stetson II+ has a strong defensive package against diseases with a wide range of adaptability. Over the past years Stetson II+ has consistently topped the Penn State yield trials in three locations.

Perhaps the most promising of the new alfalfa products is Pasture Plus. A new grazing alfalfa, Pasture Plus combines a strong disease package with an ability to withstand animal traffic. This product is a multi-purpose alfalfa, suited for grazing or conventional hay making.

Dept. Of Ag Names Employee Of Year

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker has named Deanna Baldwin, the head of the department's Grading Services, Egg Inspection and Grain Laws Section as the 1993 Maryland Department of Agriculture Employee of the Year.

"Deanna has done an outstanding job of administering this service that supports the Maryland agricultural industry and protects consumers. Simply put, under her leadership, the program is now run better than ever," Walker said.

Baldwin's section inspects and grades commodities such as fruit, vegetables, grain, soybeans, poultry, eggs, and dairy products. The egg inspection unit grades eggs according to size and quality. The grain laws unit licenses all bona fide grain dealers in the state.

"Deanna has handled personnel reductions brought on by budget cuts and maintained an efficient operation, inspecting at some 8,400 businesses. She has the respect of her staff and the people in the industry. The Maryland Department of Agriculture is fortunate to have someone with Deanna's abilities running such an important consumer related program," said Walker.

The Maryland Department of Agriculture instituted its Employee of the Year Award in 1989. Baldwin is the fifth employee so honored at the department for their service to the people of Maryland.

Cider Makers Meet To Discuss Techniques

CLAYTON, N.J. — Ninety small cider processors from New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Maryland, and Delaware met on March 16 at the American Cyanamid Agricultural Center in Princeton.

Entitled the Cider Symposium and sponsored by the New Jersey Horticultural Society, Rutgers Cooperative Extension, New Jersey Department of Agriculture, New Jersey Department of Health and the New Jersey Apple Industry Council, the focus of the meeting was to organize and educate apple cider processors on new labeling requirements for cider and improved sanitation processes.

According to Gary Mount, treasurer of the New Jersey Horticultural Society, the hope was to get all New Jersey processors together to improve sanitation practices. "Unfortunately," said Mr. Mount, "cider sales have been hurt because a very few processors out of the state have been marketing unsafe cider."

Dr. Don Schaffner, a food microbiologist and extension specialist in food science with Rutgers Cooperative Extension, discussed steps necessary to ensure cider is free of E. coli, Salmonella, and the molds penicillium, aspergillus, and byssochlamys.

Schaffner said, "Salmonella and E. coli won't grow below 40 degrees Fahrenheit, and won't grow below a pH of 3.6. Using cold acid apples, pressing the cider and cooling it quickly will lessen the problems growers in Massachusetts had with contaminated cider."'Schaffner emphasized some important steps such as proper apple storage, clean bins and crates, removing diseased apples before crushing, and washing fruit, particularly if dropped apples are used. Schaffner said, "all pressing equipment should be cleaned with a 200 PPM chlorine solution." While most small cider processors might lose their market niche, the use of preservatives like sodium and potassium sorbate and sodium benzoate will effectively control the pathogens.

Norman French of Conway, Mass., discussed different types of pressing and the process of pasteurization. French emphasized that pasteurization can change the flavor and clarity of cider, two disadvantages for small cider processors.

Dr. Richard Hayden of Purdue University was the featured speaker of the symposium. Hayden showed a video of cider processing operations in the Midwestern United States. "Many growers use 'rack and cloth' presses," said Hayden. "However, many larger producers use the Shimko press." This press gives a slight increase in yields of juice, and a significant decrease in cost.

Another interesting press was the Goodnature Squeezebox. Mount discussed his success with the squeezebox at his Terhune Orchards in Princeton, N.J.

Hayden also emphasized that good cider should have 12-percent - 13-percent soluble solids, 5-percent acid, and .05-percent tannins. He grouped apple varieties based on the percentages of these components to produce a quality cider.

Ken Kolano, program manager, food and milk program, New Jersey Department of Health, discussed the nutritional labeling requirements that will have to be placed on cider after May 8, 1994.

"Some cider producers will be exempt based on units produced and volume of sales," said Kolano. The New Jersey Horticultural Society was one of the Project Supporters of the International Apple Institute Cider Nutrition Labeling research. Kolano referred to samples of the label and definitions in the IAI fact sheet. Copies of the complete nutrition labels and fact sheets are available by writing the International Apple Institute.

A complete packet of information on the program is available by writing Bill Tietjen, New Jersey Horticultural Society, Administration Bldg., 165 County Road, Route 519-S, Belvidere, N.J. 07823-1949. For mailing and copying send a check for $4 payable to NJHS.

WORK WATCH
The Work Watch Is Back!
In the mid-1980's we sold hundreds of work watches to hard-working individuals like yourself who needed an accurate, dependable timepiece. They needed a watch that would withstand the dust, moisture, bumps, and temperatures encountered on the farm, in the orchard, and in the woods. Many who bought the work watch told us it was the best watch they had ever owned. Now, due to the past success and the present need, we are again offering the work watch through Lancaster Farming
Our work watch has all the features needed to endure the punishment you will put it through. The WATER RESISTANT seal will protect your watch when you irrigate fields, fix broken water systems, get milk splashed on your arm while feeding calves, or walk the fence in the rain, to find out where your cattle are getting out. Being SHOCK RESISTANT, your work watch will continue to work when it is slapped by a cow's tail, a falling board, or the belt shield that your arm slams against when your wrench slips off the bolt While your watch is scraped by branches, rubbed against walls, and knocked against machinery, the low profile, SCRATCH RESISTANT, glass crystal will resist the scratches and cracks that render watches unreadable. Finally, the BATTERY POWERED QUARTZ movement of your work watch is accurate to within 2 minutes per year, and does not need to be wound, meaning that your watch will be on time, all the time, without any effort on your part.
A final proof of the strength of this watch and of its suitability to your needs is the warranty. If your work watch stops running within FIVE YEARS of the date of purchase, the manufacturer will repair or replace your watch at no charge This is one of the longest warranties in the watch industry. The manufacturer's confidence in this watch means that you can have confidence in its durability and can know that this is the only work watch you will need to buy for the next five years
This watch is available in both men's and women's styles To receive your new work watch, read and complete the coupon below, and send it with your payment to:

Dairy Expert Smells Work To Be Done

GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Have you heard of the ram effect?

I don't mean the Dodge Ram, nor do I mean using a battering ram to force down castle gates. It's much more subtle, much more sophisticated; it's something you can smell.

Rather, it's something certain animals can smell. If people could smell this "effect," life would be easier.

People can smell Christian Dior fragrances on other people and usually find a certain pleasure in it. But those odors are fairly strong.

As for animals, much smaller amounts of very specific kinds of smells seem to have an equally pleasant effect. In fact, these smells send messages, messages that somebody is receptive to physical approach or the reverse — that this is somebody's territory and you are off limits.

If people could master, as Dr. Doolittle did, what the "language" means and when it occurs, animal management would be much easier.

Some companies now produce pheromones commercially as bait to lure certain insects to an artificial "love" trap or to aid pig farmers in waking up "sleepy" sows and get them more interested in service by a boar.

This brings us to what has now become known in scientific terminology as the "ram effect."

It's a subtle odor that works on ewes to stimulate their ovaries and to aid in better conception. Sheep breeders have long recognized the signs, not from smelling, but from observing flock behavior.

Breeders have taken advantage of this phenomenon for greater breeding success and profit.

Instead, the mare is held on the other side of the fence for some time, maybe an hour or more, to stimulate the stallion at the sight of her and to stimulate him with the odor signals that the mare is ovulating and ready for service.

This practice also stimulates the mare into better receptivity.

In the wild, these pheromone signals are important for propagation of the species. The two sexes communicate to ensure success for the effort of finding each other. They economize their effort so as not to waste it on animals that aren't ovulating nor ready to conceive.

Well, we have coined the term "silent estrus," which means people can't tell from smell when a dairy cow is in estrus. Our noses are incapable of receiving the pheromone signals.

Scientific literature is full of studies trying to find alternative signals in cow behavior to help us identify cows in estrus. We look for restlessness, we put pedometers on the cows' legs to tell differences in activity, we look for the mounting cow by putting pressure-color patches on their rumps.

But many dairy farmers have retained a bull, a "ketch up" bull, to do the smelling for them and "ketch" those cows we've missed.

It's high time we add a new name to our vocabulary of technical terms: "bull effect." This would help us focus on our inability so far to duplicate the effect of bull behavior and smelling for more successful dairy cow conception.

We bemoan the long time it takes many dairy farmers to get their cows pregnant again after the last calving, and we have made no headway in this area in recent years. Despite all kinds of modern technology, we are still missing the "bull effect."

A very interesting new study at the USDA Sheep Experiment Station in Idaho (Journal of Animal Science 1994 (72) :51-55) indicates that pheromones produced by the wax and wool of rams are not the only inducements to ovulation in anovular ewes.

The level and degree of sexual behavior of the ram is also important in initiating ovarian cycle activity as well.

Two types of rams were compared, low level vs. high level sexual performance, libido; that is, more courtship and more time spent with the ewes.

The efforts paid off in earlier and higher hormone levels in the ewes and ovulation occurred in 98 percent of ewes penned with high level rams vs. only 78 percent in ewes with low level rams.

It has even been shown that ewes in anestrus were even stimulated to come into estrus.

For dairy cattle breeding this means that pheromones in detecting cows in estrus or stimulating them into estrus have not been explored and exploited yet.

And the complementary importance of bull behavior for exploiting the "bull effect" for better ovulation and conception rates has not been translated from the empirical states of "ketch up" bulls to a more profitable systematic inclusion in routine, quick artificial insemination techniques for better success in dairy cattle management.

ASCS Recommends Premeasurement

LIONVILLE (Chester Co.) — Hollis D. Baker, county executive director of the Chester/Delaware County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), says farmers who use premeasurement service before planting their spring crops will be guaranteed that their field sizes are accurate for the 1994 program year.

"Premeasuring assures farmers that they are in compliance with the acreage reduction requirements," said Baker, "and eliminates the worry over loss of program benefits."

Before crop planting time, ASCS will stake and measure any type of acreage, or portions thereof, that a farmer requests. To be assured that acreage reduction requirements are met, farmers must plant within the stakes that are placed when the land is premeasured.

ASCS is conducting sign-up for the 1994 farm programs. Program participants are required to report actual planted crops and other acreage to be eligible for price support loans, target prices, and other program benefits.

"Premeasurement is important in helping producers plan which land to devote to the ACR and which fields to plant," the ASCS official said. The service costs $20 plus acres measured and includes measuring, referencing, and marking fields with stakes prior to planting.

To schedule premeasurement and other producer service, farmers should contact the Chester/Delaware County ASCS office at 71 W. Uwchlan Ave., Suite 130, Lionville, PA 19341-3011 (610) 363-1626.

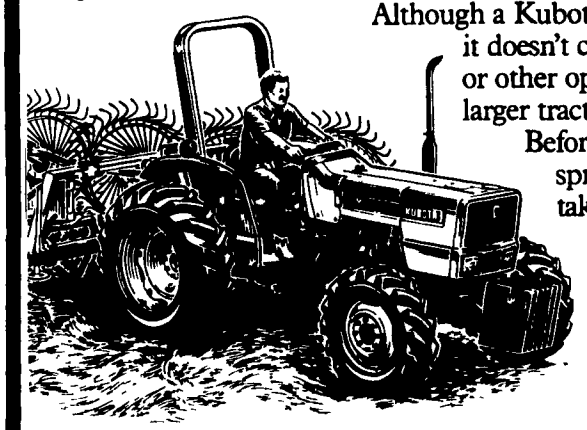
HANDLES ANYTHING THAT CROPS UP.

Kubota M-Series farm tractors are built for any kind of work that crops up. And with 4-wheel drive, they easily pull implements you'd expect to find behind a much larger tractor.

These Kubota tractors are built with strong, liquid-cooled diesel engines. With 44-85 PTO horsepower. Optional shuttle-shift transmissions. A turbo-charged model offers increased pulling power. A narrow new version works harder in close quarters.



Although a Kubota is built to take on work, it doesn't come with the big fuel bill or other operating expenses of many larger tractors.

Infinite cutting width adjustments make the new Case International 7500 semi-mounted moldboard plow your perfect choice for heavy duty plowing of rolling or contoured land. Or for adjusting to varying soils.

You can vary furrow cuts from 14 to 22 inches (356 to 559 mm), so if you turn over cornstalks at 18" (457 mm) or sod with a 14" (356 mm) cut, one plow is all you need. Also simplifies closing dead furrows and finishing headlands. Manual or hydraulic for 4 to 7 bottom plowing.

The 7500 plows also feature exclusive Earth Metal® moldboards— the kind that withstand up to 50% more deflection than conventional moldboards without breaking.

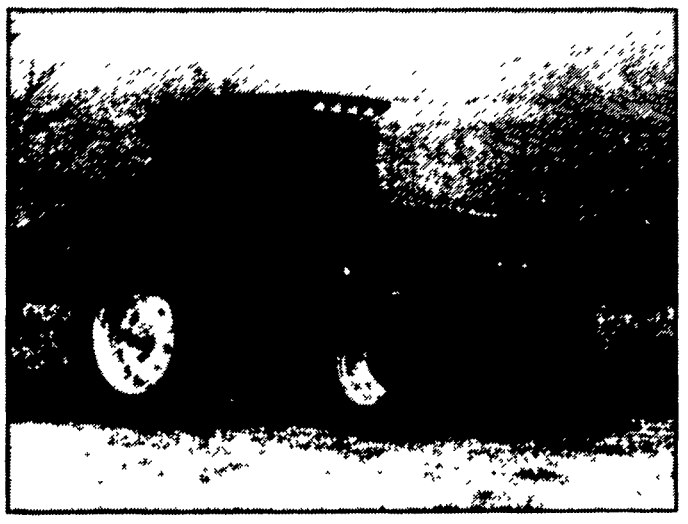
For The Way You Farm Today

Fingertip Powershift Control, Improved Field Visibility and The Most Comfortable Cab Ever



AGCO ALLIS

Model 9650
147 PTO HP (109.7 kW)

With their new 18x9 speed full powershift transmissions that electronically control the engagement of massive gears with just the tap of a hand... their cab-forward design that permits a clear, unobstructed view of the field in all directions... and their roomy, comfortable cabs, that feature a unique swivel, air-ride seat and an exclusive seat-mounted control console, the new 9600 Series tractors are clearly ahead of the time.

Every component — from the sleek, sloping hood, to the rugged, cast-iron mainframe to the world-proven air-cooled diesel engines, that require less maintenance — has been designed to match the way you farm today. The result is greater comfort, better performance and improved productivity.

Compare the features and specifications for yourself. Better yet, stop by your AGCO Allis dealer soon and try out one of the 9600 models for yourself. You have to drive it to believe it.

Efficiency Is Our Newest Resource

IXL Technology Is New, Different & Better

Modern lubricants are about as good as they are going to get. So IXL solves the problem of friction and wear by treating the metal itself.

Treated metal parts are smoother, tougher, heat and wear resistant. More importantly, the friction characteristic of the metal itself has been reduced by more than 70%! This allows lubricants to do their jobs better and last longer. Which means your equipment runs better and lasts longer—much longer; as much as two or three times the manufacturer's expected "normal" life!

HOW DOES IXL ANTI-FRICTION METAL TREATMENT ACTUALLY WORK?

Simply stated, IXL is a pressure treatment for steel. Picture iron or steel as a sponge soaking up IXL when heat and pressure are applied for a period of time. IXL is actually attracted to the heat and pressure found in your engine, transmission, differential, wheel bearings and other working parts of your vehicle. The more heat and pressure developed by these parts, the faster and deeper the treatment soaks into them.

Used as directed, the IXL treatment is longlasting and there's no resin coating or bonded film which can peel or rub off, just bare metal with IXL soaked into it. There's no buildup on the metal surfaces and no change of tolerances. The treatment even remains effective if the metal is heated red hot—way beyond the point where your lubricants have failed.

Friction created by the working parts of your vehicle is always wearing away at the metal surfaces. After treatment with IXL the friction of these surfaces is reduced by 70% or more providing "bare metal" protection and allowing your lubricants to do their jobs much more efficiently. Since friction and wear are a continuous process, we recommend (based on actual use) that you always use a little more IXL when adding or changing oil. As a result, friction and wear are always kept at a minimum. And the metal parts continue to be treated while they do their work.
